GENERAL INDEX	126

"We cannot learn from one another until we stop shouting at one another – until we speak quietly enough so that our words can be heard as well as our voices."

- Richard M. Nixon

For the most part, over the past seven years, the New Mexico Legislature and the governor have effectively been shouting at one another, pausing just long enough to (mostly) agree on those matters that absolutely required the state's attention. It is possible, then, that the 2018 legislative session offered a glimpse of how the landscape might have looked without the shouting. For her last legislative session, the governor struck a more conciliatory tone with the legislature, and despite the occasional jab at one another, the two managed to get along.

At the same time, New Mexico joined the rest of the country in learning how to listen to an altogether different set of voices. Spurred, ironically, by the shouts of victims, industries ranging from entertainment to business to politics were forced to reexamine their cultures and how they treat harassment claims. Accounts from state houses across the country revealed an atmosphere rife with harassment and policies that seemed inadequate to properly curtail it. In the month leading up to the 2018 session, a small group of New Mexico legislators and staff carefully crafted a new anti-harassment policy designed to shift the culture toward one more mindful of all voices. A major component of the new policy was its mandate of training for employees and members alike. Thus, the day before the session began, all members were required to attend harassment training, prompting some members to quip that the 30-day session had actually become a 31-day session.

Once the gavel sounded on the session itself, the legislature quickly found itself with work to do. The deadline for New Mexico to sign on to a nursing compact that would allow nurses from New Mexico to practice in other states, and vice versa, loomed just days away from the opening day of session. Rather than ease into their session work, members hit the ground running, anxious to get the nursing compact up to the governor within the first three days of the session. After a bit of discussion, the legislature managed to beat the deadline, and the nursing compact was signed by the governor.

With that out of the way, the next most important job confronting the legislature involved crafting a budget – the primary function of any 30-day session. Unlike the previous several years, when declining revenues forced the legislature to cut appropriations and look for one-time infusions of money from funds other than the General Fund, the legislature found itself with new money in 2018 – approximately $292 million, almost all due to increases in both oil prices and production. This allowed the legislature to either restore funding to accounts previously drawn down to make ends meet or devote much-needed additional funding to several areas, particularly agencies focused on human life and public safety. In the end, the legislature passed a $6.2 billion budget that replenishes the state's General Fund reserves, provides an average 2% raise to state employees (with slightly larger raises going to teachers and certain public safety employees) and increases spending in several specific areas, including road infrastructure, broadband internet system enhancement and district attorney offices.

Another pressing matter for the legislature to address was a brine well underneath a portion of Carlsbad. While other brine wells have collapsed outside the city limits, a brine well in danger of collapse still exists underneath a part of the city that contains several businesses, two state highways and an inhabited trailer park, raising concerns about the possible threat to human life. Funding was identified as the solution for mitigating the threat, and with about a week to spare before time ran out on the session, members of both chambers agreed on a funding stream.

In response to rising crime rates across the state, the majority and minority stopped shouting and combined several bills into one crime package that takes several approaches to address the issue, including behavioral health for incarcerated persons, salary increases for law enforcement officers and revised penalties for a number of offenses. The bill passed both houses with overwhelming support and was signed by the governor; however, her line-item vetoes in the bill – a bill that does not clearly appropriate money, as required by the Constitution of New Mexico – reignited some lingering questions about the governor's power to veto all or parts of such bills.

In addition to the crime package, the legislature increased funding to district attorney offices across the state. Notable among those offices was the Second Judicial District in Albuquerque, which saw a budget increase of almost 18%.

Rising oil prices and production also allowed the legislature to pass a relatively sizeable capital outlay package. While it was unable to meet the demand – $1.4 billion in capital outlay requests submitted – the legislature was able to devote just over $300 million for critically needed infrastructure projects around the state.

In a sad nod to the brutal realities of school shootings, including one in Aztec in late 2017, the legislature passed a bill to allow public school capital outlay funding to improve school security systems.

Other high-profile measures from the session that passed and were signed into law include bills to overhaul the state's guardianship system, provide more confidentiality to aerospace tenants at Spaceport America and standardize election dates and procedures for the conduct of most local elections, such as school, special district and municipal elections.

As with any session, the legislature also considered a number of high-profile bills that failed to pass. Among those was a complex bill allowing Public Service Company of New Mexico to sell bonds to offset the costs of closing its coal-fired power plant in San Juan County and a bill that would have required license plates on both the front and back of a vehicle. In what has basically become an annual ritual, a proposed constitutional amendment that would have increased distributions from the Land Grant Permanent Fund to pay for early childhood education failed to pass.

Upon adjournment, the legislature considered approximately 600 bills, passing 111 of them. Of those, the governor signed 80. Also considered were another 35 resolutions and joint resolutions and 295 memorials and joint memorials – numbers that have steadily risen over the past few years.

The Highlights is an annual publication of the Legislative Council Service (LCS) that summarizes much, but not all, of the legislative action during each session. The omission of certain legislation or issues should not be interpreted as an indication that those are not important; each is important to someone. Many issues in the Highlights defy single-topic categorization, so every effort has been made to organize and cross-reference the contents. A complete listing of bills that passed is included in the Concordance located in Appendix E.

APPROPRIATIONS AND FINANCE

Having overcome whipping winds in the 2017 state budget formation process, those who manage the state's finances were greeted in 2018 with something more like a balmy breeze and an azure sky. Compared with the previous year, when the governor's veto of virtually all funding for the legislative branch and higher education institutions triggered a lawsuit and a special session, 2018 marked a restoration of relative consonance in budget development and included little disagreement about the coming fiscal year's spending priorities.

Increases in the price of oil and a record-setting year in oil production brought a measure of welcome relief for the state. The fiscal strain of 2016 and 2017 relented in 2018, buoying the state's revenue forecast to a level that includes $292 million in new money¹ for fiscal year (FY) 2019. The shift meant that, instead of having to deplete savings or designate areas where spending would be shaved, lawmakers had the luxury of picking areas where funding could be restored or increased. Little belt tightening was required.

A major component of the fiscal plan lawmakers developed under these more favorable conditions is the replenishment of accounts drawn down to maintain financial solvency in the past two years. Lawmakers restored the state's General Fund reserves to 10% of the following fiscal year's recurring General Fund appropriations. By comparison, at the end of the previous budget-making process, that figure was .4%. The savings will help buffer the state against future financial headwinds.

A second component of the plan is the replenishment of funding for certain agencies hit hard by recent solvency measures and the channeling of newly available resources to, in particular, agencies focused on human welfare. Among others, public schools and the Children, Youth and Families Department (CYFD) will receive pronounced year-over-year increases in their operating budgets. This spending will enable the schools and that agency to more effectively carry out their respective missions: providing education and meeting the needs of the state's most vulnerable residents.

A third plan component includes pay raises for state and school employees. For many of these workers, the raise is their first since 2014.

The fiscal plan is capped off with spending on several special measures. Targeted for this type of investment are road infrastructure, Carlsbad brine well remediation, computer systems enhancement, the spaceport, economic development, interstate water compact litigation, one-time compensation increases for teachers and higher education tuition scholarships.

All in all, forces beyond and within lawmakers' control this session paved a relatively smooth path toward state budget creation and finance mending. One might hope a trend has begun.

General Appropriation Act

Following are highlights of the fiscal plan for spending General Fund money in the remainder of the current fiscal year and in the next fiscal year, as represented by appropriations made in House Appropriations and Finance Committee Substitute for House Bills 2 and 3 (Chapter 73, p.v.) (General Appropriation Act). The act appropriates $6.2 billion² in recurring revenue for spending on school and agency operations in FY 2019, which is 2.8% – or $165.3 million – more than was comparably appropriated in 2017 for FY 2018. Most of the $6.2 billion is dedicated to recurring appropriations for school and agency operations. In addition, the act makes $160.1 million in special, nonrecurring appropriations.

Where year-over-year comparisons are noted, they represent the difference between an appropriation recipient's recurring FY 2019 appropriation under the act and the recurring appropriation it received for FY 2018.

Overall, recipients that fall within the act's categories titled "Public School Support" and "Health, Hospitals and Human Services" receive the greatest year-over-year increases when expressed as dollar amounts; however, recipients within the categories titled "General Control", "Commerce and Industry" and "Agriculture, Energy and Natural Resources" receive the greatest increases when expressed as percentage change.

◆ Public School Support; Other Education

Collectively, the state's K-12 public schools continue to receive more General Fund money than any other entity, or group of related entities, controlled by the state. At $2.7 billion, the core funding³ for schools increases by 2.6% – or $66.7 million – under the act. That amount constitutes the largest single expenditure of the new money available for spending in the coming fiscal year. The investment underscores the ongoing interest of lawmakers in concentrating much of the state's financial resources in early childhood, elementary and secondary public education. Further emphasizing that interest, the act includes a provision to supplement schools' operational funding for FY 2019 by allowing up to $10 million of the state equalization guarantee distribution⁴ appropriation made in 2017 that would otherwise revert at the end of the current fiscal year to instead be redirected to schools.

Under the act's category titled "Other Education", General Fund money is appropriated for other school-related purposes. The appropriation for the Public Education Department (PED) remains flat, but the appropriation for the special programs it administers, including several geared toward early childhood education, gets a 1.9% bump to $89.9 million.

² This total does not include compensation appropriations made in Section 8 of the act.

In addition to those funding measures, the act includes provisions to augment teacher compensation. One provision requires that base salaries for teachers increase, another provides for higher-level pay raises for teachers (see an explanation of these pay raises in the Compensation Appropriations paragraph below) and a third appropriates $5 million in nonrecurring funding for teachers whose evaluation results indicate high performance.

In all, the recurring General Fund appropriations related to public schools total nearly $2.8 billion.

◆ Health, Hospitals and Human Services

The act gives programs in the category titled "Health, Hospitals and Human Services", which collectively receive the second-highest sum of General Fund appropriations, an average increase of 3.4%.

With a General Fund budget of more than $1 billion, the Human Services Department (HSD) is the largest agency in the category. The majority of the department's budget consists of funding for the Medicaid program. Although the program's General Fund appropriation increases substantially, much of the increase replaces funding the program received last year from a different source. All told, the program's cost to the state remains roughly even from the prior year; projected decreases in program costs and other factors help temper the rise in the amount of the state's match required under federal law.

The increase of $28.4 million in the CYFD budget, in contrast, more markedly represents a net enlargement of funding. Here, lawmakers concentrated that money in programs serving mostly young children and their families, including the department's pre-kindergarten program and its Childcare Assistance Program.

The Department of Health (DOH) will see an overall increase in its operating budget of 2.4%, or almost $6.9 million. Predominantly fueling that increase is an additional $6.4 million for the department's Developmental Disabilities Supports Division.

As further noted in the Compensation Appropriations paragraph below, the act also targets certain employees of the CYFD and the DOH for higher-level pay raises – specifically, select employees in the Protective Services Program of the CYFD and physical and mental health providers in the DOH.

◆ Public Safety

Lawmakers' concerns about public safety and recent spikes in the state's crime rate are addressed in significant part through the act's categories titled "Public Safety" and "Judicial". Appropriations for the operating budgets of public safety agencies⁵ increase, on average, by 1.9%. These agencies also receive several one-time appropriations to help address issues such as prison security, human trafficking and sexual assault and to pay for criminal investigations. Furthermore, many of the targeted, higher-level pay raises for state employees (see the Compensation Appropriations paragraph below) are aimed at recruiting and retaining public safety officers to help manage the crime problem.

◆ Judicial

Agencies focused on criminal prosecution, defense and adjudication will all see increases – many substantial – in their operating budgets under the act. On average, those and other related agencies' budgets increase by 4%. Agencies in this category that receive increases of more than 5% include the Ninth Judicial District Attorney⁶ (5.8%) and the Second Judicial District Attorney⁷ (17.6%), with the latter receiving an additional $2 million in special appropriations for prosecution-related expenses.

Most employees of agencies funded in this category of the act, including judges, court staff, district attorney staff and public defenders, will also receive targeted, higher-level pay raises.

◆ General Control

Consistent with lawmakers' enhanced funding of agencies charged with addressing crime and improving public safety, the Office of the Attorney General receives a hefty boost of 23.1%, or $2.45 million.

Other agencies under the act's category titled "General Control"⁸ vary as to whether they will see an increase, a decrease or no change in their operating budgets. The seemingly drastic change for some of the agencies such as the Taxation and Revenue Department (TRD), which receives an 18.9% increase ($8.4 million), is attributable in part to the decrease in reliance on non-General Fund sources for day-to-day operations. In other cases, changes in operating budget amounts are attributable to the transfer of certain appropriations to other agencies or to the projected decrease in cost for performing assigned functions.

⁶ The Ninth Judicial District's boundaries coincide with Curry and Roosevelt counties.

⁸ The largest agencies in this category are the Taxation and Revenue Department, the Department of Finance and Administration, the General Services Department, the Office of the Attorney General and the Secretary of State's Office.

◆ Agriculture, Energy and Natural Resources

Three of the agencies in the act's category titled "Agriculture, Energy and Natural Resources" will together get a General Fund boost of over $6 million: the Energy, Minerals and Natural Resources Department (EMNRD), whose share of that total is $3.16 million, or 18.5% of its prior-year operating budget; the Cultural Affairs Department (CAD), whose share of that total is $1.9 million, or 6.8% of its prior-year operating budget; and the Office of the State Engineer, whose share of that total is $1 million, or 5.8% of its prior-year operating budget. Much of the EMNRD increase, however, replaces funding that otherwise would come from a source whose solvency may be endangered, the Oil and Gas Reclamation Fund. In the case of the CAD, the additional funding will add staff at museums and historic sites.

The act addresses two risks to the state related to natural resources: a safety risk posed by the looming collapse of a brine well in Carlsbad and an economic risk posed by interstate water rights compact litigation. To address the first, the act makes a special appropriation of $3 million to the EMNRD⁹; to address the second, the act makes a special appropriation of $3 million to the Office of the State Engineer and another of $2 million to the attorney general.

◆ Commerce and Industry

The act provides for relatively significant increased investments in the state's programs aimed at economic development.

With an increase of nearly 160%¹⁰, recurring funding for the Spaceport Authority proportionately increases more than for any other agency. The enhancement comes in response to recent promising developments in the space industry and signifies lawmakers' renewed confidence that the state's venture into the industry will pay off. Further evidence of that confidence is a special appropriation of $10 million to the Spaceport Authority for an aerospace satellite testing and development hangar.

Likewise, the Economic Development Department (EDD) and the Tourism Department benefit from the state's improved financial outlook, with recurring funding levels up by 26.4% and 7.9%, respectively. Two million dollars of the EDD's increase is earmarked for the Job Training Incentive Program, whose recurring funding reaches $4 million under the act. The program further receives a special appropriation of $5 million, as does another of the state's most robust tools for attracting and encouraging the growth of private sector business, the Local Economic Development Act program. The Tourism Department's increase represents an extra $1 million in recurring funding, intended to expand advertising of the state to California's San Francisco area.

◆ Higher Education

The Higher Education Department and the state's post-secondary public education institutions

combined receive more than $12 million in additional funding over their General Fund appropriations in the previous fiscal year. The department's operating budget remains flat, while changes for the institutions vary between -1.4% (Luna Community College) and 3.7% (Central New Mexico Community College). The amount of each of those institutions' General Fund appropriation is based on an instruction and general purposes funding formula and a performance-based funding formula whose results fluctuate by institution from year to year.

The Higher Education Department also receives a special appropriation of $4 million to apply toward legislative lottery tuition scholarships.

◆ Other Appropriations and Transfers

Department of Transportation. Relying instead on federal funding ($401.3 million), money from other state sources ($479.2 million) and internal service funds ($3.5 million), the Department of Transportation (DOT), as in the past, receives no recurring General Fund money in the act for its operations. The department does, however, receive a hefty amount in special appropriations from the General Fund for state and local road improvement projects: $44 million and $20 million, respectively.

Compensation appropriations. As noted, the act provides for raises for virtually all employees whose salaries derive from the act. The scale of increase depends on the class of employee, with classroom teachers, correctional officers, probation officers, state police officers, judicial employees, certain CYFD employees and certain DOH employees targeted for higher-level raises.

Transfers. The act transfers all of the money in four funds established in the New Mexico Finance Authority (NMFA) to the General Fund to help increase the latter fund's balance and offset some of the act's appropriations. The amount of the transfers is $4.3 million.

◆ Governor's Vetoes

The governor exercised her veto power to strike parts of the General Appropriation Act. All vetoes to the act are summarized in Table 3 of Appendix B.

Feed Bill

House Bill 1 (Chapter 2, p.v.), commonly known as the "feed bill" because of its yield of funding for the legislative session, was enacted just over a week after the session began. This year marked a return to the convention of providing the majority of funding for legislative agencies in a bill separate from the general appropriation act. In 2017, such funding was first attempted in that year's feed bill, then attempted in the year's general appropriation act and, ultimately, provided in a supplemental general appropriation act introduced during the year's special session.

This year's feed bill appropriates $20.8 million from the General Fund to the legislature and legislative agencies for expenditure in FY 2018 and FY 2019. Of that amount, $4.7 million provides for the operations of the 2018 legislative session. The remainder supports interim activities and operational costs of the legislative agencies, including the LCS, Legislative Education Study Committee, Legislative Finance Committee (LFC), house and senate chief clerks' offices and Legislative Information System. As is usually the case, the bill includes funding for the Senate Rules Committee's interim expenses; however, the governor vetoed that funding, stating that the committee, for "purely partisan" reasons, has held too few hearings to confirm appointed officials to warrant the appropriation.

Other Funds

Money in the Governor's Contingency Fund has long been provided to governors for their discretionary use. Senate Bill 52 (Chapter 27) establishes the fund in statute and attaches to it a range of provisions for limiting and overseeing its use. The bill specifies allowable and prohibited uses of money in the fund, causes that money to revert at each fiscal year's end and requires the production of a monthly accounting of expenditures from the fund. The bill also subjects the fund to the Audit Act, the Inspection of Public Records Act and the Procurement Code.

New Mexico Finance Authority

The NMFA received legislative approval to make loans and grants for public infrastructure projects statewide. House Bill 99 (Chapter 22) authorizes the NMFA to make loans from the Public Project Revolving Fund to 111 projects around the state. Senate Bill 170 (Chapter 15) authorizes the NMFA to make loans or grants from the Water Project Fund for 22 qualifying projects on terms and conditions established by the Water Trust Board and the NMFA. Lists of the projects authorized in these bills may be found in Table 7 and Table 8, respectively, in Appendix B.

Two bills make appropriations from the Public Project Revolving Fund, which is administered by the NMFA, to funds that are administered by the Department of Environment (NMED). House Bill 93 (Chapter 21) appropriates $1.8 million from the Public Project Revolving Fund to the Drinking Water State Revolving Loan Fund to match federal funds available through the federal Safe Drinking Water Act. House Bill 65 (Chapter 18) appropriates $1.1 million from the Public Project Revolving Fund to the Wastewater Facility Construction Loan Fund for state matching funds that will make available a $6.3 million allocation in federal funding under the federal Clean Water Act.

Senate Bill 193 (Chapter 65) authorizes the NMFA to sell up to $20 million in state office building tax revenue bonds to plan, build, equip and furnish a new state building in Bernalillo County to consolidate services offered by the CYFD.

Capital Outlay

House Taxation and Revenue Committee Substitute for House Bill 306 (Chapter 80, p.v.), the year's omnibus capital outlay bill, authorizes spending of approximately $163.7 million from various sources to fund 623 public works projects around the state. Severance tax bond proceeds account for the vast majority of funding in the bill – $134.3 million – while just over $1 million is appropriated from the General Fund, and approximately $28.3 million is appropriated from 10 other state funds. The bill also includes a provisional authorization for a budget adjustment request for the PED to access $8 million in funds from the Environmental Mitigation Trust to purchase school buses should the trustee make funds available through the trust for that purpose. The governor vetoed 117 projects totaling just over $8.1 million and vetoed specific language from numerous appropriations, notably for playground equipment and signage.

Projects in 29 of 33 counties funded through the Local Government Division of the Department of Finance and Administration receive $22.6 million, accounting for roughly 17% of the severance tax bond proceeds authorized in the bill. These are closely followed by Capital Program Fund projects, which receive more than $21.7 million in bond proceeds. The PED and the NMED receive $8.5 million and $6.7 million, respectively, in bond proceeds. Regional and international jetports and airports in Lea County, Roswell, Santa Fe and Santa Teresa receive bond proceeds totaling roughly $4.4 million. The Spaceport Authority receives $6 million in bond proceeds, including $5 million for the installation of a fuel farm at Spaceport America.

The bill also authorizes a total of $6 million for public school safety improvements statewide from the Public School Capital Outlay Fund. The Office of the State Engineer and the NMED receive $3 million from the Water Project Fund for dam safety, water monitoring and a river stewardship program. The Water Project Fund is also tapped to provide more than $2.8 million for the Indian Water Rights Settlement Fund, with nearly $6.2 million in additional funds from bond proceeds included for that settlement.

Senate Finance Committee Substitute for Senate Bill 94 (Chapter 67, p.v.) includes four ballot initiatives to seek voter approval for the issuance of general obligation bonds for capital improvements and acquisitions totaling $157,484,878 for senior centers, libraries, school buses and higher education, including special schools and tribal schools. A total of $6 million is included in an initiative to provide the PED with school buses statewide. Institutions of higher education, special schools and tribal schools receive just over $128 million in the proposed initiative. Improvements and acquisitions for senior centers exceed $10.6 million in the bill, and $12.75 million is scheduled for library capital improvements and resource acquisitions. Gubernatorial vetoes of four higher education projects at the Los Alamos and Gallup branch campuses of the University of New Mexico, Northern New Mexico State School and Luna Community College reduced the proposed spending for schools by $7,825,000.

Senate Finance Committee Substitute for Senate Bill 245 (Chapter 68, p.v.) reauthorizes 127 prior-year appropriations to extend the time of expenditure, change the administering agency or expand or change the purpose of the original appropriation. Capital project expenditures were "frozen" by the executive branch twice during FY 2016 and FY 2017, resulting in some project completion delays. Sixty-four percent of the reauthorizations included in the bill extend the time of expenditure for appropriations. An additional 28% of the reauthorizations extend the expenditure period in combination with an expansion of the purpose, a change of purpose, a change of agency or a change of both purpose and agency. Roughly 8% of the reauthorizations expand the purpose, change the purpose or change the agency for the project without a time extension. The governor vetoed 16 of the proposed reauthorizations; in those instances, the provisions of the original appropriations remain intact.

Details of projects funded in all three capital outlay bills may be found in Appendix C.

BUSINESS AND ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT

A diverse group of business-oriented measures was passed this session, ranging from the revision of due dates for corporate reports to the establishment of an entirely new licensing scheme to address the growing problem of in-shell pecan theft in southern New Mexico. To further economic development efforts in the state, the legislature expanded eligibility provisions under the Metropolitan Redevelopment Code.

The federal Internal Revenue Service revised its corporate tax filing deadlines, prompting the passage of Senate Bill 225 (Chapter 35), which changes the due date for filing biennial corporate reports from the fifteenth day of the third month to the fifteenth day of the fourth month following the end of a corporation's taxable year. The amendments synchronize New Mexico reporting dates with federal law.

The Liquor Control Act generally prohibits manufacturers, importers and wholesalers from offering retailers payment or credit to induce the preferential placement and sale of their products. House Bill 258 (Chapter 45) addresses a specific method of inducing preferential placement and sale by prohibiting manufacturers, importers and wholesalers of malt beverages from reimbursing a retailer based upon the number of units sold during a promotional period or from allowing a retailer to instantly reduce the normal price of a particular beverage based upon a promotional coupon.

Senate Corporations and Transportation Committee Substitute for Senate Bill 27 (Chapter 28) clarifies the rights and responsibilities of auto manufacturers and their franchise dealers with respect to used motor vehicles in a dealer's inventory that are subject to "do not drive" or "stop sale" orders. Pursuant to this act, an auto manufacturer is required to provide its franchise dealer with the parts necessary to repair a used motor vehicle, and if the part is not provided in a timely manner, remedies for the dealer are prescribed. The act further proscribes additional unlawful acts of manufacturers and distributors and prohibits a manufacturer from denying a claim for compensation from a dealer on the basis of technical errors by the dealer in the claim process.

Senate Bill 217 (Chapter 47) enacts the Pecan Buyers Licensure Act to address the increasing incidence of pecan theft from growers' orchards and to support the state's efforts to combat the pecan weevil. Pursuant to the act, people who are in the business of buying in-shell pecans must be licensed by the New Mexico Department of Agriculture and must maintain detailed records of their purchases. The department and peace officers are authorized to inspect buying locations and records related to the purchase of pecans to determine compliance with the act and identify the origin of in-shell pecans to help track and prevent the spread of invasive pecan pests. Grocery stores and other retail stores, individuals who purchase an amount less than 50 pounds of pecans per year for personal consumption and pecan brokers are exempt from licensure.

With amendments made to the Metropolitan Redevelopment Code in Senate Bill 95 (Chapter 60), any county may now designate areas within its jurisdiction as metropolitan redevelopment areas. Formerly, only municipalities and H class counties – counties covering not more than 200 square miles – were authorized to designate these areas and use the redevelopment tools enumerated in the code. The bill also expands the type of projects that can be funded or financed with revenue bonds under the code to include creative enterprises or industries; cultural facilities as defined in the Local Economic Development Act; and public infrastructure in state-authorized "main street" projects or arts and cultural districts.

CHILDREN AND FAMILIES

The single bill related to children's policy that was enacted during the session provides for state regulation of licensed child care programs. The Early Childhood Care Accountability Act, enacted in House Bill 193 (Chapter 44), establishes standards for early childhood care programs licensed by the CYFD to serve children from birth to five years of age. The act is the first law to regulate programs for this population and does not change the provisions currently in place to regulate licensed child care programs for children five years old and older, known as "school-aged children". The act directs the CYFD to adopt and promulgate rules that establish standards for these early childhood care programs related to health, safety, social-emotional support, school readiness and staff qualifications. Programs will be ranked in tiers based on the standards, and the department will reimburse higher-tiered programs at a higher rate than lower-tiered programs. The act also requires the CYFD to provide, by December 31, 2019 and each year thereafter, an outcomes report for the legislature and the governor that contains information on how early childhood care programs are performing. Performance is reported with data on demographics as well as specific social services participation and benchmarks, such as the number of children receiving health screenings.

COURTS

A solitary bill related to the operation of the state's courts became law in 2018. House Bill 61 (Chapter 39) requires that funding for the Supreme Court, Supreme Court Building Commission and Supreme Court Law Library be provided through a consolidated appropriation to the Supreme Court. Among other changes related to consolidated administration of the Supreme Court building, Supreme Court Law Library and the Supreme Court, the bill replaces the membership of the Supreme Court Building Commission, previously consisting of three members appointed by the Supreme Court, with the chief justice and justices of the Supreme Court.

CRIMINAL LAW AND PUBLIC SAFETY

The legislature's crime and public safety efforts were narrowly focused during the session on assisting victims of crime, enacting achievable public safety-based reforms and reducing automobile theft. Victims of domestic violence or of the actions of a driver involved in a serious car accident received enhanced protections in a number of bills that became law. In addition, the legislature passed, with overwhelming bipartisan support, what was referred to in the media as an "omnibus crime bill". Sponsors of the package acknowledged that the bill was not an attempt at comprehensive criminal justice reform and noted that the package was instead intended to improve public safety by making a number of smaller, less controversial statutory revisions. The legislature also acted to enhance efforts to curb automobile theft, an issue that has plagued many areas in the state.

Several public safety-related bills were combined to form the omnibus crime package in House Judiciary Committee Substitute for House Bills 19, 215, 217, 266 & 271 (Chapter 74, p.v.). The package addresses a range of policies, including behavioral health for incarcerated persons, retention payments for certain long-term law enforcement officers, the penalty for possession of a firearm by certain felons and penalties for a number of crimes and motor vehicle offenses. Adjustments to penalties in the legislation include: an increased penalty for a felon convicted of possessing a firearm if the person's previous felony conviction is for a capital felony or another serious violent offense; increased penalties for driving offenses, such as the failure to obey a traffic signal or exceeding the speed limit by up to 10 miles per hour; and decreased penalties for offenses such as the failure to renew vehicle dealer plates, carrying too many persons on a bicycle and failure to obey pedestrian control signals.

Upon signing this legislation, the governor, in what she asserted was a permissible use of her line-item veto power, removed provisions that would have reduced penalties for a person who fails to appear in court and that would have prevented the Motor Vehicle Division of the TRD from suspending a driver's license for the driver's failure to appear in court or to pay a fine. She also vetoed a section that would have reduced the penalty for driving with a suspended license.

The Constitution of New Mexico provides that a governor may strike portions of "any bill appropriating money". However, that power historically has been exercised with respect to legislation, such as the general appropriation act, that newly provides the legislature's authorization to use money for a particular purpose.

House Bill 119 (Chapter 40) creates a new program in the Secretary of State's Office to provide certain confidentiality protections for victims of domestic violence. The Confidential Substitute Address Act, enacted in the bill, allows a program participant to obtain a confidential substitute address in order to allow the participant's residential and delivery addresses to remain confidential. A program participant receives mail and deliveries at the confidential substitute address at no additional cost.

Strangulation and suffocation, which occur in many incidents of domestic abuse and violence, are addressed in two pieces of legislation. Definition sections in the Crimes Against Household Members Act, the Abuse and Neglect Act and the Family Violence Protection Act are revised in Senate Bill 61 (Chapter 30) to include definitions for and references to strangulation and suffocation. The bill also revises language in the Criminal Code to provide that third degree felony aggravated battery against a household member includes such a battery committed by strangulation or suffocation. In addition, basic law enforcement officer training related to domestic abuse incidents will now include information on strangulation, as required in House Bill 40 (Chapter 37).

Senate Bill 188 (Chapter 33) adds a crime to the list of those for which victims are eligible for reparation under the Crime Victims Reparation Act – failure by a driver involved in a car accident that results in injury or death to give information or render aid at the scene of the accident.

House Bill 173 (Chapter 42) creates the Automobile Theft Prevention Authority in the Office of Superintendent of Insurance. The authority, governed by a board of directors and staffed by the Office of Superintendent of Insurance, is required to solicit, review and approve applications for grants to improve and support automobile theft prevention programs or programs for the enforcement or prosecution of automobile theft crimes. The bill provides that every year, the authority must report to the legislature on the programs that receive grants.

CULTURAL AFFAIRS

Unusual in a 30-day session, there were several bills introduced to address cultural affairs. The three that were signed into law expand funding opportunities for libraries, including the state library, and create opportunities for private vendors to conduct business on behalf of the CAD.

House Bill 117 (Chapter 23) authorizes the state librarian and the state historic preservation officer to solicit and receive funds or property, including federal funds and public and private grants, for programs and activities administered by those officers. This new authority is identical to authority already provided to directors of the Museum of New Mexico divisions in the CAD.

The Library Broadband Infrastructure Fund is created in House Bill 207 (Chapter 25) to provide broadband infrastructure funding for public, tribal and school libraries. The fund, which is administered by the Department of Information Technology, may be expended as matching funds for grants to public, tribal and school libraries; to support grant applications and compliance; and for planning and data acquisition services to support collaborative project implementation.

Senate Bill 78 (Chapter 14) allows the secretary of cultural affairs to authorize vendors to sell tickets, passes and other products on behalf of the CAD. An authorized vendor may retain a portion of the sales price as compensation for providing this service.

DISABILITY

The legislature passed a bill during the session that represents a major set of policy changes for the protection of certain individuals with disabilities and their property. Senate Judiciary Committee Substitute for Senate Bill 19 (Chapter 10) amends and enacts new sections of the Uniform Probate Code to address areas of concern with the state's guardianship and conservatorship laws. New and revised provisions in the code:

- ▶ prohibit guardians and conservators from commingling their own funds and investments with those of individuals subject to guardianship or conservatorship, or "protected persons";
- ▶ require full compliance with the requirements of any audit of an account, inventory, report or property of a protected person;
- ▶ prohibit guardians and conservators from requesting or receiving a release or waiver of liability;
- ▶ expand notice requirements whenever a hearing is scheduled regarding the appointment of a guardian or conservator;
- ▶ open to the public any court proceedings regarding the establishment of guardianships and conservatorships unless the court determines otherwise for good cause;
- ▶ increase communication and visitation with protected persons;
- ▶ establish protective arrangements other than a conservatorship; and
- ▶ generally require conservators to post a bond in an amount equal to the value of the protected person's estate plus one year's estimated income of the protected person.

The bill also directs the Administrative Office of the Courts to report to the LFC regarding the feasibility of implementing the Uniform Guardianship, Conservatorship and Other Protective Arrangements Act in the state.

EDUCATION

While the increasingly prominent proposal to tap Land Grant Permanent Fund money for early childhood education suffered its eighth consecutive legislative defeat, the legislature and the governor judged several other education-related policies worth advancing. Among them were measures to adjust calculations – those for public school operational funding distributions, for public school capital improvement distributions and for lottery program tuition payments – and measures that, collectively, raise teacher salaries, promote school security and improve the education-based financial support of public service lawyers and family members of public safety personnel who die in the line of duty. A bill that expedites the process for licensing military-affiliated educators newly residing in New Mexico is described in the Military and Veterans' Affairs section.

Public Schools

House Bill 188 (Chapter 55) changes the public school funding formula in response to recommendations culminating from evaluations and studies conducted over the past several years. Under the new law, the formula's instructional staff training and experience component will be phased out and a new teacher cost index that reflects the tiered-licensure system applicable to teachers will be phased in.

The law also gradually increases the weight in the formula of the at-risk index, which measures student poverty levels, English learner status and student mobility.

Senate Bill 30 (Chapter 66) changes another public school-related formula, one that is used to calculate the amounts contributed by the state and by school districts for standards-based public school capital outlay projects. The bill was developed in response to conclusions drawn through an independent assessment of the public school capital outlay funding formula and gradually changes the formula to increasingly reflect a school district's ability to pay for its infrastructure projects. Specifically, new factors, including facility space needs, facility replacement costs and population density, will influence the share of project funding disbursed from the Public School Capital Outlay Fund and the share paid by taxpayers at the local level.

A second measure affecting public school capital outlay funding, House Bill 48 (Chapter 38), requires that the PED use property valuation data from the previous year in calculating the amount of funding distributed to a school district whose taxpayers have approved a property tax for public school capital improvements through the program established by the Public School Capital Improvements Act. The change will improve the timeliness of those distributions.

Lawmakers responded to the recent eruption of gun violence in public schools across the country and in New Mexico by enacting Senate Bill 239 (Chapter 71), which expands the permissible uses of the Public School Capital Outlay Fund to include school security system projects. It further directs the Public School Capital Outlay Council to develop and implement a system for making school security system project grants and allows the council to allocate up to $10 million of the fund in each of four years for those grants.

Senate Bill 119 (Chapter 72) raises the minimum salary for teachers in each of three licensure levels: for a level 1 teacher, the minimum salary is $36,000; for a level 2 teacher, $44,000; and for a level 3-A teacher, $54,000.

Post-Secondary Education

All three higher education-related bills that were signed into law focus on tuition assistance. Senate Bill 143 (Chapter 32) removes the earnings cap for eligibility for public service law loan repayment assistance. House Bill 55 (Chapter 76) expands the benefits and higher education options for recipients of the fire fighter and peace officer survivors scholarship. Senate Finance Committee Substitute for Senate Bill 140 (Chapter 70) decouples legislative lottery tuition scholarship amounts from tuition costs. With this change, scholarships at research institutions are worth $1,500 per semester per student; at comprehensive institutions, $1,020; and at community colleges, $380. Going forward, the scholarship amount will increase or decrease based on the same distribution proportions and on the amount of money available in the Lottery Tuition Fund.

ELECTIONS

While there were relatively few bills introduced this session relating to elections, one of the bills that was signed into law will have far-reaching effects on the conduct of many of the state's local elections.

Nonpartisan local elections, such as those for municipalities, school districts, special hospital districts, community college districts, conservancy districts and other special districts, have traditionally been held at various times, but not at the same time and usually not in conjunction with partisan general elections. Consequently, some counties have had up to 11 elections held within their borders in a given year, giving rise to criticism of the hodgepodge of laws governing such elections. The Local Election Act, enacted by House Local Government, Elections, Land Grants and Cultural Affairs Committee Substitute for House Bill 98 (Chapter 79), addresses some of that criticism by standardizing the dates and procedures for most local elections and special elections, as well as establishing the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November of each odd-numbered year as the regular local election day for most local elections and the first Tuesday in March of even-numbered years as municipal officer election day for all municipalities. The act also provides that municipalities may by ordinance opt into holding their elections on the regular local election day, though certain home-rule municipalities with voter identification requirements that conflict with state requirements are not allowed to opt in. Conservancy districts and watershed districts will become subject to the act beginning July 1, 2022, while all other local districts named in the act are subject to its provisions beginning July 1, 2018.

During the 2017 interim, the Courts, Corrections and Justice Committee received a presentation about the need for increased security measures related to campaign contributions made using a credit or debit card. As a result of that presentation, some additional campaign contribution requirements have been added to the law. Senate Bill 50 (Chapter 29) requires a contributor to include, with any campaign contributions made via the internet using a credit or debit card, the card's security code and the billing address associated with that card.

ENERGY, ENVIRONMENT AND NATURAL RESOURCES

The legislature passed three bills this session that relate to actual or potential impacts to the environment, all of which address some aspect of the oil and gas industry. One bill focuses on the legal tools needed to remediate the Carlsbad brine well, and another authorizes increased financial assurance to cover the costs of plugging abandoned oil or gas wells. The third bill amends definitions and adds certification requirements under the Hazardous Waste Act and the Ground Water Protection Act.

After the Carlsbad brine well was drilled several decades ago, a large cavern was left under the ground at the well site, posing a significant risk of sinkhole formation. In 2017, associated public safety and economic loss concerns led to the creation of the Carlsbad Brine Well Remediation Advisory Authority, slated to provide recommendations and advice to the Oil Conservation Division of the EMNRD on the brine well's remediation. House Energy, Environment and Natural Resources Committee Substitute for House Rules and Order of Business Committee Substitute for House Bill 319 (Chapter 26) strengthens the role of the authority by permitting it to set policy and regulate, supervise and administer the remediation of the Carlsbad brine well and the use of the Carlsbad Brine Well Remediation Fund. The authority, whose name is changed in the bill to the Carlsbad Brine Well Remediation Authority, also may enter into contracts and acquire property as required for remediation of the brine well. The bill names the secretary of energy, minerals and natural resources as chair of the authority's board of directors.

Under the Oil and Gas Act, the Oil Conservation Division is authorized to require oil and gas operators to provide financial assurance for the plugging of abandoned wells. Senate Bill 189 (Chapter 16) increases the maximum amount of blanket plugging financial assurance that may be required from $50,000 to $250,000. Prior to this 2018 act, the maximum amount of blanket plugging financial assurance that could be required had not been increased since 1977, the year the Oil and Gas Act was enacted.

Amending definitions to conform with federal law, Senate Bill 28 (Chapter 11) provides that a "pipeline facility" as defined and regulated under federal law is not subject to regulation as an "underground storage tank" or "above ground storage tank" under the Hazardous Waste Act and the Ground Water Protection Act. The bill also provides a process under the Hazardous Waste Act for the certification and registration of tank testers that is aligned with the current requirements for a tank installer.

FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS

The sole bill passed and signed into law concerning financial institutions came about as the result of a criminal case involving a nonprofit trust company. Senate Bill 137 (Chapter 64) amends the Trust Company Act to provide increased security for persons whose assets are managed by a trust company and strengthens requirements for trust company compliance with state and federal laws. The bill also expands the authority of the director of the Financial Institutions Division of the Regulation and Licensing Department, enabling the director to take actions deemed necessary or advisable to ensure that trust companies comply with state law and conduct business in a safe and sound manner.

HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES

Five bills that relate to health and health facilities were enacted this year. The legislature and the governor moved quickly in the first two days of the session to enact a nursing licensure compact that provides stability for nurses and employers who depend on the multistate licenses that the compact affords. After several years of effort by advocates and health plans, a bill was signed into law that establishes guidelines for how health plans may restrict access to certain prescription drugs. Another successful measure related to prescription drugs decriminalizes the dispensing, prescribing, possession, storage, transport and use of federally approved prescription drugs that contain preparations of cannabis or one of its derivatives. Two bills address behavioral health concerns, with one removing certain restrictions on crisis triage centers and the other revising the focus and expertise on an advisory council created to address overdose prevention and pain management practices.

In 2003, New Mexico enacted legislation to take part with other states in the multistate Nurse Licensure Compact. The compact created a framework to allow professional registered nurses and licensed practical nurses from other states to practice in New Mexico on a multistate license and allowed New Mexico nurses holding a multistate license to practice in the other compact states. With the enactment of Senate Bill 1 (Chapter 1), New Mexico joins 24 of the original Nurse Licensure Compact states and five new states in the new Enhanced Nurse Licensure Compact. The updated compact institutes 11 uniform licensure requirements for multistate licenses, including education and background check requirements and prohibitions on licensure based on felony and misdemeanor convictions. It also allows for the "grandfathering in" of nurses currently holding multistate licenses and creates the Interstate Commission of Nurse Licensure Compact Administrators to more efficiently coordinate multistate licensure among the compact states. The compact became effective immediately upon the governor's signature in January.

Health care plans often attempt to manage the cost of providing prescription drug coverage by placing restrictions on an enrollee's use of that coverage, most commonly by establishing lists of preferred and non-preferred drugs on a drug list, or "formulary", or requiring prior authorization before a plan covers the cost of a drug. Under another common practice, known as "step therapy", a health plan requires that an enrollee patient test the efficacy of an initial drug in treating the patient's condition and demonstrate that the drug is ineffective before the plan will cover another, usually more expensive, drug.

Senate Corporations and Transportation Committee Substitute for Senate Public Affairs Committee Substitute for Senate Bill 11 (Chapter 9) establishes step therapy guidelines for public health plans, such as Medicaid and public employee coverage, and for private health plans sold to employers, groups and individuals that fall under state jurisdiction. The guidelines compel health plans to establish certain standards-based criteria for establishing step therapy protocols and exceptions to those protocols. Exceptions from step therapy protocols are established to allow use of prescribed drugs that are not on a plan's formulary when the drugs on the formulary would cause a significant barrier to a patient's adherence or compliance with the patient's plan of care; worsen another of the patient's medical conditions; or decrease the patient's ability to maintain activities of daily living. The act places review and appeal of step therapy decisions regarding exceptions requests with the superintendent of insurance pursuant to the state's Patient Protection Act. A health plan is required to cover a prescribed drug pending the outcome of an exception request.

House Health and Human Services Committee Substitute for House Bill 139 (Chapter 41) amends the state Controlled Substances Act to provide that, if the federal Food and Drug Administration (FDA) approves a prescription drug containing cannabis – defined as "marijuana" under the act – or one of its derivatives, the dispensing, prescribing, possession, storage, transport and use of that prescription drug would no longer be subject to prosecution in New Mexico. Currently, all applications of marijuana are illegal under federal law. Medical marijuana may be used, possessed, sold, stored and transported within the state pursuant to the Lynn and Erin Compassionate Use Act in non-prescription drug form only for registered medical marijuana patients. The FDA has not approved any prescription drugs containing marijuana, but some pharmaceutical companies have filed an application with the FDA for approval of prescription drugs to exploit the properties of marijuana in combating conditions such as epilepsy. The contingent effective date for the bill is the date on which the Board of Pharmacy certifies to the New Mexico Compilation Commission and the director of the LCS that the FDA has approved one or more drugs containing marijuana.

To address the current prescription drug overdose epidemic, arising mostly from the use of opioids and other prescription drugs for pain treatment, Senate Bill 29 (Chapter 12) directs the advisory council that was established in the Pain Relief Act to study and make recommendations regarding overdose prevention and pain management practices. The legislation also changes the council's name to the "Overdose Prevention and Pain Management Advisory Council" and adds to its membership an addiction specialist and representatives from the HSD, the Department of Public Safety, a harm reduction organization and a third-party payer.

Crisis triage centers provide crisis stabilization services – an alternative to incarceration or acute crisis services offered in a hospital setting – for persons experiencing a behavioral health crisis. Triage services are intended for persons with mental health issues, substance use disorders and developmental disabilities who do not pose a significant risk to public safety. Senate Bill 220 (Chapter 34) removes a provision that restricted crisis triage centers from being appurtenant to hospital facilities, thus allowing them to be physically part of an inpatient hospital and included in a hospital's license. The act also clarifies that a crisis triage center may provide both residential and nonresidential behavioral health crisis stabilization services. The DOH must seek an amendment to the New Mexico Medicaid State Plan from the federal Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services to allow Medicaid reimbursement for these services.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Both of the local government bills that were enacted this year pertain to local elected officials, with one bill addressing salaries and the other addressing recalls.

House Bill 69 (Chapter 78) increases the maximum salaries elected county officials may receive for their service in office by approximately 15%. The bill also eliminates the obsolete category of class "C" counties.

In 1996, voters approved a constitutional amendment that requires a recall petition of an elected county official to cite grounds of malfeasance or misfeasance in office, or a violation of an oath of office, and requires that a court determine that there is probable cause to support the allegations cited in the petition before it can be circulated for signatures. House Bill 49 (Chapter 49) applies similar requirements to the recall of an elected official in a commission-manager municipality.

MILITARY AND VETERANS' AFFAIRS

The legislature addressed several issues relating to New Mexico's veterans and military personnel. New Mexico National Guard members and their families may now receive financial assistance from voluntary income tax refund contributions regardless of where the members are deployed. Eligibility for Gold Star family member license plates was expanded, and expedited teaching licenses are now available to members of the military who are stationed in New Mexico, as well as to their family members. The legislature revised statutes that govern the New Mexico National Guard, including a revision to the minimum required rank for adjutant general, and, in a separate measure, made misrepresentation of military service a crime. In honor of a recently deceased member of its own ranks, the legislature established the Luciano "Lucky" Varela opportunity scholarship at the New Mexico Military Institute.

Senate Bill 16 (Chapter 6) updates the organizational structure of the New Mexico National Guard to reflect current practice. Starting July 1, 2018, the minimum rank required for a person to be named adjutant general of the state's military forces will increase from major to colonel. The bill also removes the position of vice-deputy adjutant general; allows for any assistant adjutant general to be called into service in the event that both the adjutant general and the deputy adjutant are incapacitated or absent from the state; and removes brigade-specific language that limited the ability to convene a special or summary court martial.

The adjutant general was given some flexibility over the distribution of funds to New Mexico National Guard members and their families with the passage of House Bill 47 (Chapter 4). The Department of Military Affairs may now use money from voluntary state income tax refund contributions to assist New Mexico National Guard members and their families, regardless of whether the guard member is deployed overseas.

Gold Star family members are the immediate relatives of United States armed forces members who die in armed conflict. Since 2009, surviving parents, stepparents and spouses have been eligible to request special Gold Star registration plates for their vehicles, and the initial Gold Star plate requested by a surviving mother or spouse has been issued free of charge. Senate Bill 86 (Chapter 7) broadens the eligibility for a Gold Star plate to include children and siblings of a fallen service member. It clarifies that eligibility includes family members who are related by law as well as by biology and also provides free initial plates to surviving fathers as well as surviving mothers.

House Bill 67 (Chapter 5) creates the crime of misrepresentation of military service. A person who misrepresents himself or herself as currently serving, or having served, in the armed forces to get something of value based on that service is now guilty of a misdemeanor.

In 2013, the legislature passed a law to expedite professional and occupational licensure for military service members, including members of the New Mexico National Guard, their spouses and veterans. Senate Bill 97 (Chapter 8) extends expedited teaching licenses to service members, spouses and veterans who hold valid or expired teaching licenses from other jurisdictions, provided that all other licensing requirements, including background checks, are met. A license issued to an applicant with an expired license from another jurisdiction is valid for no more than one year.

The Luciano "Lucky" Varela opportunity scholarship at the New Mexico Military Institute in Roswell, created by House Education Committee Substitute for House Bill 68 (Chapter 20), will benefit New Mexico high school students who meet need-based requirements. Scholarships will be funded by a transfer of funds from the institute's budget balances, including existing scholarship endowments.

MOTOR VEHICLES AND TRANSPORTATION

This year, the legislature updated a program that helps government entities transition to alternative fuel vehicles, created a verification process to prevent stolen vehicles from being inadvertently recycled and adjusted the time required to maintain court records of many traffic violations for commercial drivers.

The Alternative Fuel Acquisition Act established a revolving loan fund to assist state agencies, educational institutions and political subdivisions in changing their vehicle fleets from conventional gasoline and diesel vehicles to those that use various alternative fuels. Originally, only purchases of vehicles weighing less than 8,500 pounds were eligible for loan assistance. With amendments made in House Bill 165 (Chapter 53), vehicles of any size are now eligible for purchase assistance through the loan program, with potential loan amounts determined by the size of the vehicle. The bill also limits loan assistance to purchases of vehicles that use natural gas, liquified petroleum gas, electricity or hydrogen.

Starting on January 1, 2019, prior to taking possession of a vehicle, an automobile recycler will have to verify with the Motor Vehicle Division of the TRD that the vehicle has not been reported stolen. With the enactment of House Bill 52 (Chapter 75), auto recyclers must electronically report vehicle purchases to the Motor Vehicle Division, and the division must create and maintain an electronic system that allows auto recyclers to verify that a vehicle has not been reported stolen. The bill also requires auto dismantlers to have title to a vehicle prior to dismantling it and sets out a process for taking possession of abandoned vehicles.

Court records for traffic violations are kept as a matter of public record for certain periods of time. Records of violations for vehicular homicide and for driving under the influence of drugs or alcohol are kept for 55 years for all motorists, while records of other traffic violations are kept for three years for most motorists. Records of traffic violations by the holder of a commercial driver's license (CDL), however, are currently kept for 55 years regardless of the violation. House Bill 182 (Chapter 54) reduces to six years the time that traffic violation records will be kept for CDL holders on most nonlethal violations; however, records of violations involving the use of alcohol or drugs will still be kept for 55 years. In those instances where federal law requires that violation records for CDL holders be kept for more than six years, the bill requires that state records be held to conform with the federal time frame.

PROPERTY

With the enactment of Senate Bill 101 (Chapter 63), New Mexico becomes the first state to adopt the Uniform Directed Trust Act. The act embodies provisions developed by the Uniform Law Commission for directed trusts, or those that grant someone other than a trustee power over a trust's administration. Experts in trust law collaborated to draft the uniform act in response to the increasing prevalence of directed trusts and the need in most states for a more comprehensive body of law on the subject.

STATE GOVERNMENT

The legislature passed several measures that address general government operations, including the disposal of surplus property, the delay of an agency's termination date and the adjustment of legislative rules to match actual practices. Government transparency is increased in one enacted measure that provides greater access to the legislature's works in progress during sessions, while transparency is decreased in another measure that creates a new exemption from the Inspection of Public Records Act. Following several high-profile scandals involving public officials, the legislature addressed public concerns about how and for whom most public facilities may be named by imposing naming restrictions and requiring removal of a facility's name if its namesake has subsequently been convicted of a felony offense.

Entities

As required by the state's Sunset Act, the LFC periodically reviews regulatory agencies to determine if they are still necessary and, if so, recommends legislation to delay the agencies' termination, or "sunset", dates. Senate Bill 125 (Chapter 31) extends the termination date of the State Racing Commission, which regulates horse racing in New Mexico, to July 1, 2021 and extends the repeal date of its governing statute, the Horse Racing Act, to July 1, 2022.

Legislature

Over the years, some differences have developed between the house rules and what is actually practiced in the chamber. House Rules and Order of Business Committee Substitute for House Resolution 1 more closely aligns some house rules with long-standing practices, such as publication of calendars and committee schedules. The resolution addresses some matters of decorum and debate by requiring members to ask a sponsor to yield, emphasizing that members should devote their attention to proceedings and requiring that members keep electronic devices silent. It also repeals an outdated rule that permitted smoking in the chambers at the pleasure of the speaker of the house.

Senate Resolution 1 allows for posting of floor amendments and floor substitutes on the legislative website immediately upon their introduction, making proposed changes to bills accessible to members, staff and the public while the bills are on final passage.

Open Records

The commercial space industry is highly competitive, and the Spaceport Authority strives to attract new aerospace customers to utilize its facilities at Spaceport America. Because the authority is an agency of state government and Spaceport America is owned by the state, information related to potential customers could be subject to inspection and disclosure pursuant to the Inspection of Public Records Act. Senate Judiciary Committee Substitute for Senate Bill 98 (Chapter 61) provides that proprietary technical or business information related to the authority's aerospace customers is exempt from inspection pursuant to the act if disclosure would cause substantial competitive harm to the customer. Trade secrets and information that would compromise the physical security or cybersecurity of authority facilities are also exempt from inspection pursuant to the act.

Property and Procurement

Senate Bill 46 (Chapter 13) amends the Property Control Act not only to provide for how a public facility is named but also to impose naming restrictions. A public facility may not be named for a public officer during the officer's time in office, though a building currently named for a public officer may continue with that name. If a public facility is named for a person who is later convicted of a felony, the person's name must be removed upon conviction. "Public facility" is defined as a building or other real property under the control of the Facilities Management Division of the General Services Department (GSD), which is responsible for most, but not all, state facilities. Those facilities over which the division has no control, and to which the new restrictions do not apply, include facilities of the CAD, the DOT, the State Armory Board, the Border Authority, the State Fair Commission, the Department of Game and Fish, the commissioner of public lands, the State Parks Division of the EMNRD, state institutions of higher learning, regional education cooperatives, the New Mexico School for the Deaf, the New Mexico School for the Blind and Visually Impaired, the New Mexico Military Institute, the judicial branch, the legislative branch and property acquired by the EDD pursuant to the Statewide Economic Development Finance Act. The secretary of general services will give naming recommendations to the governor.

The GSD, which holds title for state-owned property, determined that the state no longer has a need for real property located on the former Walker Air Force Base in Roswell. As required by statute, prior to dispositions of certain state property, the GSD requested legislative ratification and approval for sale of the Roswell property. With the adoption of House Joint Resolution 9, the department may now sell the property by competitive sealed bid, public auction or negotiated sale, though not for less than its appraised value of $225,000.

Since the early 1940s, the federal jurisdiction on certain parcels of Kirtland Air Force Base has been clouded. House Joint Resolution 13 transfers exclusive jurisdiction from the state to the federal government, thereby clarifying issues related to law enforcement on those parcels.

The Procurement Code allows governmental entities to enter into certain contracts with terms longer than one year. For contracts for tangible personal property, services other than professional services and construction worth $25,000 or more, most multi-term contracts may be no longer than eight years. House Bill 187 (Chapter 43) amends this term to 10 years. The extension may result in better pricing terms for the state, especially with information technology projects. This longer term also aligns New Mexico contracts with terms in other states and with federal contracting terms, thus allowing New Mexico to enter into more cooperative procurements for goods and services.

TAXATION

With news of a healthier financial forecast, the legislature passed two new gross receipts tax deductions and one personal income and corporate income tax credit during the session. Several administrative bills were passed as well, including a bill to allow alternative evidence to entitle a taxpayer to a gross receipts tax deduction if the taxpayer does not have a nontaxable transaction certificate, a bill providing new procedures for the special sale of certain abandoned real property and a bill that transfers the duty to collect insurance premium taxes from the Office of Superintendent of Insurance to the TRD.

Gross Receipts Tax

The two new gross receipts tax deductions that were enacted include the creation by House Bill 79 (Chapter 46) of a two-year deduction for certain purchases made on the Saturday after Thanksgiving. The sale price of each purchase must be less than $500 to qualify. Senate Bill 99 (Chapter 62) creates the second deduction, which is a four-year gross receipts tax deduction for construction services to implement an F-16 pilot training mission project at Holloman Air Force Base.

House Floor Substitute for House Bill 245 (Chapter 58) redefines the tax treatment of construction material for gross receipts tax purposes to allow taxpayers to deduct certain construction-related tangible personal property sold to federal or New Mexico governmental agencies or to nonprofit organizations.

A person that does not have a nontaxable transaction certificate that would normally establish entitlement to a gross receipts tax deduction may now provide alternative evidence to establish entitlement to that deduction due to the changes made by House Taxation and Revenue Committee Substitute for House Bill 194 (Chapter 56). The alternative evidence the TRD may now accept to allow a deduction includes:

- ▶ invoices or contracts that identify the nature of the transaction;
 - ▶ documentation as to the purchaser's use or disposition of the property or service;
 - ▶ a statement from the purchaser indicating that the purchaser sold or intends to resell the property or service purchased from the seller, either by itself or in combination with other property or services, in the ordinary course of business; or
- ▶ any other evidence that demonstrates the facts necessary to establish entitlement to the deduction.

Income Taxes

Senate Bill 231 (Chapter 36) provides incentives to employers that hire "qualified foster youth", defined in the bill as individuals who were adjudicated as abused or neglected or were in the legal custody of the CYFD, a New Mexico Indian nation, tribe or pueblo or the United States Department of the Interior Bureau of Indian Affairs Division of Human Services. With this legislation, if the eligibility requirements are met, an employer may claim a foster youth employment income tax credit or corporate income tax credit up to $1,000 for employing a qualified foster youth who works for the employer at least 20 hours a week during the tax year.

By removing the deadline for filing a claim with the TRD for a refund from the Native American Veterans' Income Tax Settlement Fund, House Bill 149 (Chapter 52) reopens the opportunity for those who are owed a refund but did not file for the refund before 2013 to recover the money that is owed to them.

The New Mexico Housing Trust Fund, created in 2005, provides matching funds for federal and other affordable housing programs. By the end of FY 2017, the state had invested $18.7 million into the fund, and with the passage of House Bill 140 (Chapter 51), the fund can now receive money directly from taxpayers as well. After the 2017 tax year, a taxpayer may designate all or part of an income tax refund to the fund.

House Bill 276 (Chapter 59) requires all employers to submit annual statements of withholding for each employee and requires all employers with 25 or more employees to file the statements electronically.

Transportation-Related Taxes

Accompanying the recent swell in economic activity along the state's border with Mexico is an increase in the number of Mexican commercial motor carriers crossing at Santa Teresa. House Floor Substitute for House Rules and Order of Business Committee Substitute for House Bill 329 (Chapter 77) eases the burden of those carriers that make frequent trips to New Mexico by establishing permits that remove the obligation to pay special fuel excise tax-related fees at each crossing. Instead, under the new law, the DOT may issue such a carrier a quarterly, semi-annual or annual permit for limited-distance travel within an international border commercial zone. The law also adjusts the period of validity of temporary special fuel user permits.

Senate Bill 226 (Chapter 3) reduces the distribution of the motor vehicle excise tax to the General Fund by 4.15% and directs that money to the State Road Fund.

Other Taxes

The duty to collect insurance premium taxes is transferred from the Office of Superintendent of Insurance to the TRD in House Taxation and Revenue Committee Substitute for House Bill 223 (Chapter 57). The legislation moves this duty from the New Mexico Insurance Code to a new Insurance Premium Tax Act. Other than the transfer to a new act to be administered by a new department, the substance of the laws relating to the administration of the premium taxes remains virtually unchanged. All personnel directly involved with premium taxes will be transferred to the TRD on January 1, 2020, the effective date of the act.

House Business and Industry Committee Substitute for House Bill 88 (Chapter 50) provides new procedures for the special sale by the TRD of "abandoned real property", a newly defined term, for which delinquent property tax is due. The property must be in a subdivision that was subdivided on or before 1980 and has at least 5,000 lots that have been delinquent for at least 10 years but does not include property with existing homes, businesses or other habitable structures. While sales by the TRD of other delinquent property must be sold at a minimum price that is not less than the total of all delinquent taxes, penalties, interest and costs due, if the TRD determines that the minimum price would be more than what could reasonably be made through public auction, the abandoned real property could be offered for less. The legislation also allows these sales to be made via an online platform.

House Bill 35 (Chapter 48) increases a distribution of the liquor excise tax to the Local DWI Grant Fund from 41.5% to 45% and provides for the distribution of 5% of the tax, beginning on July 1, 2019, to a newly created Drug Court Fund to offset client service costs of drug court programs.

TELECOMMUNICATIONS

With the enactment of House Business and Industry Committee Substitute for House Bill 38 (Chapter 17) and Senate Judiciary Committee Substitute for Senate Bill 14 (Chapter 69), which are identical bills, New Mexico joins more than a dozen states that have prescribed local government regulation of the installation of small cell equipment in and on public spaces and infrastructure. The equipment, installed in relatively dense concentration, is necessary to support developments in wireless network technology driven by the increasing consumer demand for wireless data transmission. The bills enact the Wireless Consumer Advanced Infrastructure Investment Act, which sets forth the parameters governing local governments and wireless services providers when the providers set out to deploy equipment associated with the advanced technology.

UTILITIES

Eligibility for the state loan assistance program for water and sewer system projects was expanded this year to include regional and interstate agencies and to allow a broader scope of projects to leverage federal funding programs. Additionally, water and sewer system operators now may be held criminally liable in an instance where false information is provided to the NMED on an issue regarding public health.

The Wastewater Facility Construction Loan Act was originally enacted to provide state agencies and local authorities with low-cost financial assistance in the construction of necessary wastewater facilities. House Bill 66 (Chapter 19) updates the act to clarify that the projects and entities that are eligible for financial assistance under the act are those that are authorized by the federal Clean Water Act of 1977, as it existed as of January 1, 2018. Watershed projects and other projects that meet the requirements of the Clean Water Act are eligible for funding, and interstate and inter-municipal agencies may qualify as borrowers.

House Bill 142 (Chapter 24) creates a criminal penalty for public water system owners or operators, or their agents, who knowingly make false statements to the NMED on matters concerning public health. A person who violates the provisions of this 2018 act, or knowingly causes another to violate the act, is guilty of a misdemeanor, which carries a penalty of up to one year in county jail or the payment of a fine of not more than $1,000, or both.
