INDICES

GENERAL INDEX .....	152

"I've seen dark skies, never like this/ walked on some thin ice, never like this/ I've told you white lies, never like this/ looked into true eyes, never like this"

-It's in the Way That You Use It, Eric Clapton

Over the course of time, language evolves. New words creep into the lexicon, while other words become so overused that the gravity originally associated with them begins to fade. It is too early to tell how history will look back on the year 2020 and the word "unprecedented". It may be true that the word has been tossed about entirely too often, but it is also true that few other words are quite as apt.

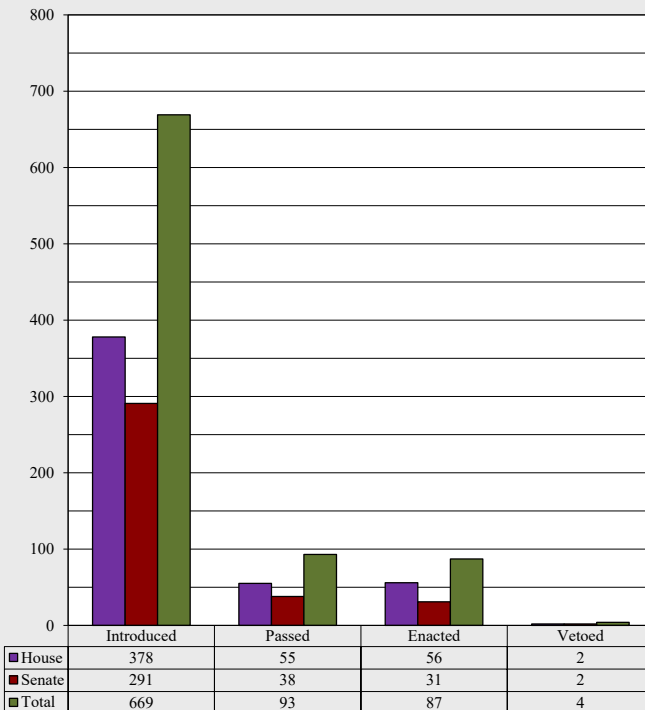

The story of the New Mexico Legislature in 2020 is impossible to tell without using terms like unprecedented and some of the new terms. First, however, it is important to establish some legislative context. At the conclusion of the 2020 regular session, the legislature had taken the required step of crafting a budget: a nearly $8.38 billion package of recurring and nonrecurring spending (an 8.3% increase over the previous year's budget, made possible largely because of increased revenue due to oil and gas activity in the southeastern corner of New Mexico) that included nearly $2 billion in operating reserves. Also passed were a $320 million Early Childhood Education and Care Fund, created as a compromise between groups seeking to increase the distribution from the Land Grant Permanent Fund and others who warned such an increase could harm the corpus of that fund; a heavily compromised, yet still controversial, extreme risk protection order bill, which allows courts to order the temporary seizure of firearms from individuals deemed a danger to themselves or others; solvency measures for the Public Employees Retirement Association; and a $422.9 million capital outlay package. A normal Highlights publication would outline these measures, and many others, in much greater detail. However, predicting the future is a risky endeavor in any year, and unprecedented events were just around the corner.

It is important to understand some basics regarding New Mexico's budget and income sources. The oil and gas industry provides a significant portion of income for the state and for local governments. Fluctuations in the price per barrel of oil can have drastic impacts on the state's budget: every $1.00 change in the price per barrel can translate into a $10 million change in revenue to New Mexico. Despite some warning signs that oil and gas activity was showing signs of slowing down, the budget crafted during the regular session relied heavily upon oil drilling and production, and prices, remaining at close to 2019 levels.

As the regular session wound down, news of a deadly new virus that began in Wuhan, China, began to circulate. A global health alert was quickly issued. Extremely contagious and much deadlier than the common flu, the novel coronavirus SARS-CoV-2, which causes COVID-19 (also known colloquially as the coronavirus) had already begun moving from Asia to Europe and the United States by the time the session ended. In response, governments began issuing shelter-in-place or stay-at-home orders to their citizens, as well as often closing down businesses deemed non-essential. As people stayed home and off of the roads and factories closed, world oil consumption dropped sharply. In response, in early March, OPEC and Russia tried to negotiate production limits to stabilize oil prices, which Russia ultimately backed away from, causing Saudi Arabia to increase production, cut oil prices and flood global markets – a potentially crushing blow to New Mexico's largely oil revenue-dependent budget.

Cognizant of the global situation, yet still within her 20-day period to sign or veto legislation, the governor used her line-item veto authority to strike some funding from the budget, along with much of the General Fund money set aside for capital outlay.

Unfortunately, the worst was yet to come. A few weeks later, the coronavirus began sweeping across the United States. The response varied wildly across all levels of government, with expert guidance often contradicted by politicians. In mid-March, Governor Lujan Grisham declared a public health emergency, first closing schools, then ordering state government employees to begin working at home and eventually closing all non-essential businesses. In keeping with health-related protocols, the State Capitol was also closed to the public. While the measures succeeded at slowing the spread of the virus, the effects on New Mexico's economy were devastating, and yes, unprecedented. With the crucial oil and gas component of the state's revenue stream already on life support, gross receipts tax revenue suffered as well, falling well short of projections.

The question about a special session to address budget solvency evolved fairly quickly from "if" to "when" to "how". Aside from the governor's public health order prohibiting gatherings of more than five people, the confluence of the virus's highly contagious nature, the high percentage of legislators classified as high risk to develop serious (and even fatal) symptoms from the virus and the widely held sentiment that the Roundhouse functions as something of a virus-laden petri dish when the legislature is in session made the prospect of holding a conventional special session a dangerous one. However, the notion of the physical presence of members is one that arises in numerous instances in both the Constitution of New Mexico and the rules of both the House of Representatives and the Senate (which could only be changed to allow for any kind of remote participation by convening in Santa Fe with a minimum of two-thirds of the membership of each chamber in attendance).

As luck would have it, 2020 is also an election year. As March gave way to April and crept toward May, concerns about how to safely hold the primary election scheduled for early June began to grow. The New Mexico Supreme Court considered the question of allowing mail-in voting, asking both the governor and legislature about the viability of an almost immediate special session. In response, the governor said that she had no plans to call one quite so quickly, while the legislature expressed some doubt about how, exactly, it could meet safely and resolve the highly charged issue of mail-in voting without a significant amount of planning and negotiation. In turn, the court allowed for a modest expansion of absentee voting procedures for the primary election. The Supreme Court also heard arguments on a challenge to the New Mexico Legislative Council's direction to close the State Capitol to the public during the special session. A narrow 3-2 vote by the justices kept the doors closed to the public.

Once the dust finally settled on the primary election, the presiding senate president pro tempore, the chairs of the powerful Senate Finance Committee and the Senate Corporations and Transportation Committee (which typically reviews all proposed changes to tax laws), two members of the Senate appointed by the governor and another two senators were all defeated, likely leading to a dramatic shift in the landscape of the Senate in 2021.

About the same time New Mexico's governmental branches grappled with a special session and primary voters cast their ballots, people around the world (many of whom still remained at home) watched an entirely different scene unfold. News reports and (in at least one case) disturbing video of African Americans being killed by law enforcement officers drove thousands upon thousands into cities across the country to protest racial injustice, the vast majority of which were peaceful but with a small percentage that turned violent on which the media, the public and public officials focused. By the time the governor called the legislature into a special session in mid-June, social justice issues had joined budget solvency and election issues on the list of bills to consider.

While special sessions always entail certain unique elements, the 2020 special session could very well be in a class by itself. Convening on June 18, the First Special Session of the Fifty-Fourth Legislature began with each chamber changing its rules to keep members and staff as safe as possible, albeit with somewhat different approaches. The House allowed members to participate via remote, electronic means, while the Senate required members to be in the building, but not necessarily in the chamber. Somewhat controversially, the building complex remained closed to both the public and lobbyists. For the first time, public input on proposed legislation was relegated to either emailed comments or video conferencing platforms. Another first was the sight of staff and members alike lined up in the various halls of the Roundhouse, all waiting to have lengthy swabs shoved into at least one nostril as part of testing protocols.

The curtain rose on the special session with a number of items outlined by the governor's proclamation. These included several technical approaches to budget solvency, along with a number of social justice measures, election fixes and expansion of the public health emergency laws that allowed the governor to take the steps she initially did to shut down the state. As with most other sessions, a number of bills not included in the governor's proclamation were also introduced. And, as 2020 would have it, the first day's webcasts were continually interrupted by a corrupted database file on the outside vendor's server that hosted the legislature's webcasts.

The First Special Session of the Fifty-Fourth Legislature lasted about four days (the latter three without webcast problems). Of the 37 bills introduced, seven passed. In order to help keep state government solvent, bills reducing funding to state government agencies and programs, transferring money, eliminating most raises for state employees, sweeping severance tax bond revenue and voiding inactive capital outlay projects (among other solvency measures) were passed. To address some of the social justice issues outlined in the governor's proclamation, the New Mexico Civil Rights Commission was created, and a bill requiring law enforcement officers to wear body cameras was passed. Taxpayer issues were addressed through passage of a bill waiving penalty and interest fees for certain state taxes due from April 15 to July 15, as well as doubling a distribution to cities and counties for gross receipts taxes collected by the state. Help for small businesses affected by months of being shut down was addressed in the Small Business Recovery Act of 2020. Several temporary changes to the Election Code in anticipation of the November general election were also approved. All seven of the bills passed by the legislature during the special session were signed by the governor, although she did partially veto two.

A global health pandemic, spreading like wildfire and killing hundreds of thousands, plunging both global and local economies into chaos; stay-at-home orders for huge swaths of the world's population; larger and longer-lasting protests for racial justice; injection of terms like "social distancing" and "flattening the curve" into everyday conversations; special sessions featuring participants either wearing masks or using video conferencing software; virtual birthday parties and commonplace use of remote learning and the postponement or outright cancellation of any number of traditional events... all without modern precedent. Hyperbole is a cherished, time-honored form of communication in legislative circles, and yet even there, "never like this" and "unprecedented" were seldom exaggerations in 2020.

The Highlights is an annual publication of the Legislative Council Service (LCS) that summarizes much, but not all, of the legislative action during each session. The omission of certain legislation or issues should not be interpreted as an indication that those are not important; each is important to someone. Many issues in the Highlights defy single-topic categorization, so every effort has been made to organize and cross-reference the contents. A complete listing of bills that passed is included in the Concordance located in Appendix E.

SECOND SESSION, 2020

AGING

In the one bill related to aging that was enacted into law, House Bill 225 (Chapter 8) creates the "Kiki Saavedra Senior Dignity Fund", named for Henry Kiki Saavedra, the long-time state representative and former House Appropriations and Finance Committee chair who passed away in 2019 and advocated for providing opportunities for senior citizens. Administered by the Aging and Long-Term Services Department, the fund is intended to pay for services for New Mexico senior citizens, including transportation, food security, physical and mental health, assistance with appointments and care coordination. To begin paying for services, the General Appropriation Act of 2020 (GAA) has allocated $7.3 million for the fund.

ANIMALS

This year the legislature passed and the governor signed two bills regarding animals: one bill reinforces a federal ban on the sale of animals and animal parts from certain internationally protected species; and a second bill increases the funding available for in-state spay and neuter programs.

Trafficking in endangered species can be a highly lucrative enterprise in which animals and animal parts from throughout the world are trafficked into the United States. The United States belongs to the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species of Wild Fauna and Flora, which controls the international trade in endangered species and in parts or products of those species. While the treaty covers both plants and animals, New Mexico's Wildlife Trafficking Act, enacted by Senate Bill 75 (Chapter 77), is concerned only with endangered animals that are listed in Appendix 1 of the treaty, such as lions, elephants and rhinoceroses. In particular, the act prohibits the sale and purchase of these endangered species or their parts or products. However, it does not govern hunters who have federal permits issued by the United States Fish and Wildlife Service that allow them to bring into the country parts of animals they have lawfully killed. A violation of the act is a criminal misdemeanor that may result in a fine of up to $1,000 and a jail sentence of up to one year. In addition, violators of the act are subject to civil penalties not to exceed $10,000 or three times the total value of the covered animal species or covered animal part or product, whichever is greater. Any commissioned law enforcement officer is empowered to enforce the criminal provisions of the act, and civil enforcement may be enforced by any agency or political subdivision of the state that employs commissioned law enforcement officers or by any person authorized by the attorney general.

For a number of years, the Board of Veterinary Medicine has been grappling with an overpopulation of homeless cats and dogs around the state. To decrease the burden on local animal welfare agencies, Senate Bill 57 (Chapter 69) increases funding for spay and neuter programs in the state and for the costs of administering the Animal Sheltering Act by imposing a fee on commercially sold dog and cat food.

APPROPRIATIONS AND FINANCE

Just as during the 2019 legislative session, optimism was high during the 2020 session because of record-setting oil revenues the state continued to receive from the extractive industry. Due to such optimism, the state budget was increased, though at a lower percentage than in the previous year's budget, and an agreement was made between the legislature and executive to provide significant funding for early childhood education and care services. But, since much of the state budget is dependent on the extractive industry, which is historically volatile and subject to substantial booms and busts, the legislature passed a budget that kept reserves at an estimated 25% of recurring appropriations, the high end of what state economists recommended prior to the beginning of the session. This money in reserves will be needed, because shortly after the session ended, oil prices fell significantly, causing the governor to veto $150 million in General Fund spending, $110 million in capital outlay projects and nearly $50 million in local road projects. The day the governor vetoed this funding is the same day she declared a public health emergency after multiple New Mexico residents tested positive for COVID-19, the disease caused by the new coronavirus, and the same day the World Health Organization recognized the outbreak of the disease as a pandemic.

Due to worsening economic conditions from the pandemic and plummeting oil and gas prices, the legislature convened in a June special session and passed House Bill 1, which makes a number of adjustments to the GAA and is detailed in the Fifty-Fourth Legislature, First Special Session section of these Highlights. What follows in this section is what is appropriated in the GAA from the regular session.

General Appropriation Act

After action taken by the governor, the GAA, enacted in House Appropriations and Finance Committee Substitute for House Bills 2 and 3 (Chapter 83, p.v.), appropriates nearly $8.38 billion in recurring and nonrecurring spending in fiscal year (FY) 2020 and FY 2021, an increase of 8.3% over the General Appropriation Act of 2019. In FY 2021, appropriations to agencies for operating expenses total over $7.5 billion, a year-over-year increase of 9.23%. The GAA also allocates $63 million to provide a 4% salary increase for state government employees and employees at the state's higher education institutions, as well as a 7% increase in pay for judges. Additionally, $94.2 million is appropriated to provide an average 4% salary increase for public school personnel.

◆ Public School Support; Other Education

The "Public School Support" category receives the most recurring General Fund appropriations of any category of the GAA at $3.37 billion, which includes funding for the state equalization guarantee distribution that finances K-12 public education as well as the public school personnel salary increases noted above. The appropriation also includes nearly $120 million for the K-5 Plus Program, $71.4 million for extended learning time programs and $30 million for school districts and charter schools to purchase culturally and linguistically appropriate instructional materials for eligible students.

In the "Other Education" category, $47.2 million is appropriated from the General Fund in FY 2021. Of that amount, $14.9 million is appropriated for the operating budget of the Public Education Department, $1.1 million is allocated to regional education cooperatives and $31.2 million is provided for special appropriations to the Public Education Department. See the Education section of these Highlights for a more detailed summary of public school initiatives funded in the GAA.

*Includes appropriations in Chapter 1 (Feed Bill) and portions of Sections 4, 8 and 12 of Chapter 83 (GAA).

◆ Higher Education

The GAA appropriates $905.5 million from the General Fund for New Mexico's public post-secondary educational institutions and the Higher Education Department. The Higher Education Department receives just under $48.5 million, including $12 million for the Opportunity Scholarship Program, and the two largest universities in the state are allocated more than 60% of the funding, with the University of New Mexico and New Mexico State University set to receive $338.1 million and $216.6 million, respectively.

◆ Judiciary

Judicial agencies are appropriated $332.9 million, resulting in most agencies receiving about a 10% increase from their FY 2020 appropriations. None receive more than an 18% increase, but those whose budgets are boosted over 10% are the Fifth, Tenth, Eleventh, both Division I and Division II, and Twelfth Judicial District Attorneys. Other agencies with notable gains over their FY 2020 allotments include the New Mexico Supreme Court at 5.5%, the Court of Appeals at 7.4% and the Administrative Office of the Courts at 9.7%. Only the New Mexico Compilation Commission's budget remains flat.

◆ General Control

General control agency General Fund appropriations increase just under 10% to $156.6 million for FY 2021. The Office of the Governor's budget is raised 12.7% to $4.58 million, the appropriation to the New Mexico Sentencing Commission is more than doubled from $549,600 in FY 2020 to $1.24 million in FY 2021 and while the appropriation to the Public Employees Retirement Association is reduced from $77 million in FY 2020 to $54.6 million in FY 2021, a fund transfer of $55 million is made in Section 10 of the GAA to the association's retirement fund in FY 2020 due to the passage of pension solvency reforms in Senate Bill 72, which is discussed in the Public Officers and Employees section of these Highlights.

◆ Commerce and Industry

In the "Commerce and Industry" category, agencies receive an increase of almost 14% in FY 2021 appropriations, which total close to $69 million, as compared to FY 2020, which totaled just under $61 million. Agencies with the biggest growth are the Spaceport Authority, which is appropriated more than $2.6 million, a 166% increase over its $985,400 FY 2020 appropriation, and the Border Authority, which receives $450,100, a 40% increase. The Tourism Department and the Economic Development Department, the agencies with the highest budgets in this category, each get a 10% increase. Also included under this category is just under $1 million for the State Ethics Commission.

◆ Health, Hospitals and Human Services

An overall increase of 13.75% is provided for health, hospitals and human services agencies, for a total of almost $2.1 billion. The Human Services Department receives the largest share, by far, at over $1.22 billion, a 10% increase, followed by the Department of Health at $318.2 million, a 1.7% increase, and the Children, Youth and Families Department at $223.6 million, a 27.6% decrease due to the transfer of duties to the new Early Childhood Education and Care Department, which is slated to receive more than $206.6 million. The only other agency that is allocated less funding in this category in FY 2021 is the Veterans' Services Department, at $5.4 million, a 5.7% decrease from FY 2020.

◆ Public Safety

Public safety agencies are appropriated $496.5 million in FY 2021, a 7.5% increase from FY 2020. The Corrections Department, receiving more than $343 million, a 7% increase, and the Department of Public Safety, receiving nearly $135 million, more than an 8% increase, together account for the vast majority of the funding under this category.

◆ Other Appropriations and Fund Transfers

The Department of Transportation does not normally receive appropriations from the General Fund but instead relies on funding from the Federal Highway Administration and the State Road Fund. However, the GAA appropriates $180 million from the General Fund to the Department of Transportation in FY 2020 for acquisition of rights of way, planning, design, construction, equipment and statewide rest area improvements and to match federal and other state funds for projects, as well as for a variety of projects named in Section 9 of the GAA that are divided among the six transportation districts in the state.

Other significant special appropriations in the GAA for FY 2020 include $51.7 million to the Computer Systems Enhancement Fund for system replacements or enhancements, $20 million to the Higher Education Department for financial aid for low-income students and $17 million to the Office of the State Engineer for the interstate stream compact compliance and water development program to develop and fund a water management pilot project for the lower Rio Grande for fiscal years 2020 through 2023.

In addition to the fund transfer to the Public Employees Retirement Association, another notable fund transfer of $320 million in FY 2021 is made from the General Fund to the Early Childhood Education and Care Fund, created by House Bill 83, which is summarized later in this section under the Public Finance subheading.<sup>1</sup>

Feed Bill

House Bill 1 (Chapter 1), known as the "feed bill" because it funds the legislative session, appropriates $24.2 million from the General Fund to the legislature and legislative agencies for expenditure in FY 2020 and FY 2021. Of that amount, $5.5 million provides for the operations of the 2020 legislative session, and the remainder supports interim activities and year-round operational costs of the legislative agencies that include the LCS ($6.4 million), Legislative Education Study Committee (nearly $1.5 million), Legislative Finance Committee ($4.6 million), house and senate chief clerks' offices ($1.5 and $1.6 million, respectively, including additional funding for leadership staff) and Legislative Information System ($1.3 million) for non-salary expenses. The bill also includes funding of $19,100 for the Senate Rules Committee's interim expenses.

Other Appropriations

The United States Constitution requires a federal census to be undertaken every 10 years. This population count serves as the basis for ensuring fair political representation and for the distribution of federal funds. Senate Bill 4 (Chapter 2) appropriates $8 million to the Department of Finance and Administration for the department to conduct outreach efforts to achieve a statewide complete count in the upcoming 2020 census.

Public Finance

Over the last several years, early childhood development has been a topic at the forefront of the legislative sessions. Perennially, questions are raised regarding funding for early childhood programs. Introduced as a governor-endorsed bill, House Bill 83 (Chapter 3) creates the Early Childhood Education and Care Fund, which consists of excess money from federal mineral leases and oil and gas emergency school taxes once state reserves have reached a level of 25% or more of the aggregate recurring appropriations from the General Fund. The Early Childhood Education and Care Fund then provides an annual distribution for early childhood education and care services and programs.

While the Industrial Revenue Bond Act and the County Industrial Revenue Bond Act already included electric generation facilities in their definitions of what constitutes a project, House Bill 50 (Chapter 14) amends both acts to also include electric transmission facilities as eligible projects. Additionally, the bill requires industrial revenue bond and county industrial revenue bond projects to make payments to the state in an amount equal to 5% of the in-lieu tax payments made to the local government. Payments are also required to be made to local school districts in the amount that would have been received in property taxes for the fully developed project.

House Bill 207 (Chapter 31) changes the name of the "Local Government Transportation Project Fund" to the "Transportation Project Fund", and it allows money from the fund to be used for transportation infrastructure for Indian nations, tribes or pueblos located wholly or partially in New Mexico.

If the balance of the General Fund Operating Reserve at the end of a fiscal year is less than 1% of aggregate General Fund appropriations for that year, House Bill 341 (Chapter 34) provides that the Department of Finance and Administration is authorized to transfer from the Tax Stabilization Reserve to the General Fund Operating Reserve the amount necessary to bring the balance to 1% of those appropriations.

Senate Bill 136 (Chapter 75) allows the State Investment Council to authorize investments in New Mexico private equity funds and New Mexico businesses of up to 11% of the market value of the Severance Tax Permanent Fund.

New Mexico Finance Authority

Several bills make appropriations from the Public Project Revolving Fund (PPRF), which is administered by the New Mexico Finance Authority (NMFA), for infrastructure, water and wastewater projects. House Bill 47 (Chapter 59) allocates $2 million from the PPRF to the Local Government Planning Fund for qualified entities to develop plans for infrastructure, water and wastewater projects. In Senate Bill 69 (Chapter 70), $2.5 million is appropriated from the PPRF to the Drinking Water State Revolving Loan Fund to provide state matching funds for federal Safe Drinking Water Act of 1974 projects. Also, Senate Bill 103 (Chapter 42) allocates $5 million from the PPRF to the newly created Cultural Affairs Facilities Infrastructure Fund to pay the costs of Cultural Affairs Department facilities and exhibits. The bill adds the Cultural Affairs Facilities Infrastructure Fund to the list of funds that may receive legislative appropriations from the PPRF and removes outdated provisions regarding appropriations from the PPRF to other funds. Lastly, $1.8 million is appropriated from the PPRF to the Wastewater Facility Construction Loan Fund in House Bill 167 (Chapter 62) for the state's required matching funds for federally sponsored projects and to carry out the purposes of the Wastewater Facility Construction Loan Act.

Additionally, the NMFA has received legislative approval for public infrastructure projects around the state in two bills. House Bill 27 (Chapter 57) authorizes the NMFA to make loans or grants from the PPRF to 18 qualified entities for building, equipment, infrastructure, debt refinance, road, land acquisition, water, wastewater, water rights and solid waste projects. Senate Bill 19 (Chapter 68) authorizes the NMFA to make loans or grants from the Water Project Fund to 34 qualifying public entities for water projects. Lists of the projects authorized in these bills may be found in Table 8 and Table 9, respectively, in Appendix B.

Capital Outlay

House Taxation and Revenue Committee Substitute for House Bill 349 (Chapter 81, p.v.) authorizes $422,892,207 in capital outlay project expenditures for FY 2020 through FY 2024. The bill includes $352,334,507 in severance tax bond projects and $42,909,700 in General Fund appropriations, while other state fund appropriations in the bill total $27,648,000 and include appropriations from the Public School Capital Outlay Fund, the Penitentiary Income Fund, the Equipment Replacement Revolving Funds, the Oil and Gas Reclamation Fund and the Educational Retirement Fund. However, the governor vetoed a total of $99,907,440 in General Fund appropriations and $9,621,651 in severance tax bond appropriations, citing a sudden drop in gas and oil prices and the looming economic impact of the global coronavirus pandemic.

Nearly $173.2 million in projects to the Local Government Division of the Department of Finance and Administration in 33 counties is included in the bill. For a range of water and wastewater system improvement projects, the Department of Environment receives close to $52 million, including $4 million for a water system decontamination project in Curry and Otero counties and a combined $3.6 million for a dam and a diversion channel in Dona Ana County. Furthermore, almost $43.2 million is appropriated to the Capital Program Fund for capital improvements at Department of Public Safety, Workforce Solutions Department, Department of Health and Children, Youth and Families Department facilities, as well as for improvements to state-owned facilities under the purview of the Facilities Management Division of the General Services Department. The governor vetoed a $2 million appropriation for statewide master planning for state-owned buildings under the oversight of the Facilities Management Division.

Public Education Department projects receive almost $24 million in the bill, including a heavy volume of projects aimed at improving individual school security systems and nearly $9 million from the Public School Capital Outlay Fund to replace school buses, although the governor vetoed language included in some school projects, particularly for charter schools, to eliminate funding for purposes other than security enhancements for those schools. Capital project appropriations to the Indian Affairs Department dropped to roughly $12.7 million from a record $75 million last year, while appropriations to the Interstate Stream Commission topped $14 million, including $9 million to the Indian Water Rights Settlement Fund. In addition, the Department of Information Technology and the Department of Transportation each receive just over $11 million in the bill.

Senate Finance Committee Substitute for Senate Bill 207 (Chapter 84), the 2020 Capital Projects General Obligation Bond Act, includes three ballot initiatives to seek voter approval for the issuance of general obligation bonds for capital improvements and acquisitions totaling $198,491,400 for senior centers, libraries and higher education. Institutions of higher education, special schools and tribal schools would receive $155,973,967 in the proposed initiative. Improvements and acquisitions for senior centers total $33,017,433 in the bill, and $9.5 million is identified for library capital improvements and resource acquisitions.

House Taxation and Revenue Committee Substitute for House Bill 355 (Chapter 82, p.v.) reauthorizes 118 prior-year appropriations to extend the time of expenditure, change the administering agency or expand or change the purpose of the original appropriation. Seventy-eight percent of the reauthorizations included in the bill, or 92 projects, extend the time of expenditure for those appropriations. Of those reauthorizations, 11 projects include a change of purpose and 14 include an expansion of purpose. Approximately 20% of the reauthorizations, a total of 24 projects, change or expand the project purpose without a time extension, and almost 7% of the reauthorizations change the administering agency. Although the governor vetoed four of the reauthorizations, the provisions of the original appropriations remain intact.

Details of projects funded in all three capital outlay bills may be found in Appendix C.

BUSINESS AND ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT

While a number of bills became law that tangentially affect business and economic development, only three bills directly impact this topic area. The bills address a broad spectrum of business and economic issues within the state.

Tri-State Generation and Transmission Association, Incorporated, will close its Escalante coal-fired electric generating facility near Grants, New Mexico, by the end of 2020, resulting in significant job losses and tax revenue losses for McKinley and Cibola counties. House Bill 8 (Chapter 78) allows McKinley County to create an electric generating facility economic district to help the industrial redevelopment of the facility and surrounding area; Cibola County has the option of joining the district by the end of 2020. The bill details the process of forming the district, the appointment of members of the district's governing authority, the conduct of governing authority members and powers and duties of the governing authority. Member counties have the option of imposing a local option gross receipts tax of up to one-fourth percent in either the unincorporated area of the county or the entire county. However, receipts from such taxes can be used only to repay interest and principal on bonds issued by the governing authority for the purpose of constructing, purchasing, improving, remodeling, furnishing or equipping any necessary buildings, structures, roads or other infrastructure in the district.

Under general principles of corporate law, directors of corporations are required to maximize profit for shareholders as part of their duties to act in the best interests of the corporation. House Bill 118 (Chapter 61) allows a corporation to designate itself as a benefit corporation that does not have a singular focus on maximizing profits. Pursuant to the new law, a corporation may designate in its articles of incorporation a general purpose of creating general public benefit to have a positive impact on society and the environment, taken as a whole, and may also include a purpose to create a specific public benefit. The directors of a benefit corporation are not limited to considering the interests of shareholders as beneficiaries of the corporation when determining the best interests of the corporation, but may also consider the interests of the corporation's employees and customers, community and societal factors, the local and global environment, long-term and short-term interests of the corporation and the corporation's goals of achieving a general or specific benefit.

The state, through the Economic Development Department, has long had the authority to participate in local and regional economic development projects pursuant to the Local Economic Development Act. However, this act was silent regarding the parameters for such participation. Senate Bill 118 (Chapter 74) clarifies that authority, setting specific goals, requirements and limitations regarding state support. Furthermore, the bill creates the Local and Regional Economic Development Support Fund from which the department may draw funds to participate in approved projects.

CHILDREN AND FAMILIES

In the two bills pertaining to children and families that became law in 2020, issues in the kinship guardianship and foster care systems were addressed, with one bill focusing on the financial impact to kinship guardians throughout the state and the other providing significant revisions and technical cleanup to the Fostering Connections Act.

In cases where a child's parents are unable to care for a child, the Kinship Guardianship Act enables children to be raised by relatives, members of the child's tribe or an adult with whom the child has a significant bond. Senate Judiciary Committee Substitute for Senate Bill 146 (Chapter 51) provides for financial assistance payments to a kinship guardian on behalf of the child. The bill sets forth eligibility requirements for financial subsidies, including reimbursement for nonrecurring expenses incurred in establishing a subsidized guardianship. Also, the bill specifies the requirements for guardianship assistance agreements and provides for successor guardians, discontinuance of guardianship assistance payments and methods of appealing decisions related to subsidized guardianships made by the Children, Youth and Families Department. When considering whether a parent should contribute to the support of a child, the court shall now consider the potential impact of financial payments on the relationship of the parent and child and on the prospects of family reunification.

Enacted into law in 2019, the Fostering Connections Act provides extended foster care for eligible adults 18 through 20 years of age. Senate Judiciary Committee Substitute for Senate Bill 168 (Chapter 52) makes numerous changes to the act to ensure eligibility for significant federal funding. These changes include new and revised definitions, clarification of eligibility to participate in the Fostering Connections Program, services to be provided by the Children, Youth and Families Department through the program, allowing an eligible adult to opt out of and reenter the program without limitation on the number of times to do so, additional requirements for review and discharge hearings, new duties required to be performed by the Fostering Connections Advisory Committee and a provision for administrative appeals. Moreover, the bill clarifies court venues and eligibility for subsidy payments pursuant to the Children's Code.

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS

Of the many joint resolutions proposing amendments to the Constitution of New Mexico that were introduced this session, only one passed both houses and will appear on the November 2020 ballot, along with Constitutional Amendment 1, which passed the legislature in 2019. The LCS publishes an analysis of and arguments for and against proposed constitutional amendments prior to any election in which they appear. This publication, titled Summary of and Arguments For and Against the Constitutional Amendments Proposed by the Legislature in 2019 and 2020, was released by the LCS in July 2020 and is available at www.nmlegis.gov/Publications/Constitutional\_Amendments.

Statutory provisions that would have had the effect of lengthening or shortening the terms of office of certain elected officers were declared unconstitutional in State ex rel. Sugg v. Toulouse Oliver, 2020-NMSC-002. To address the holding in that case, House Joint Resolution 8 (C.A. 2) proposes to amend Article 20, Section 3 of the Constitution of New Mexico to allow the legislature to adjust the term of a state, county or district officer to align or stagger the election of officers for a particular state, county or district office throughout the state. The proposed amendment also clarifies that officers elected to fill a vacancy in office shall take office on the first day of January following their election.

COURTS, CRIMINAL LAW, LAW ENFORCEMENT AND PUBLIC SAFETY

The 2020 session saw the New Mexico Legislature pass and the governor sign a handful of courts, criminal law, law enforcement and public safety bills, ranging from a comprehensive criminal law and public safety bill to bills addressing distributions of funding for law enforcement agencies and training and funding for school resource officers, enacting the Extreme Risk Firearm Protection Order Act, revising the Electronic Communications Privacy Act and increasing the number of judges in several judicial districts.

House Judiciary Committee Substitute for House Bills 6, 35 & 113 (Chapter 54) addresses a comprehensive range of topics relating to public safety, including provisions that change criminal penalty enhancements and other provisions affecting law enforcement officers. Criminal penalty enhancement changes include an amendment to the criminal statute regarding a felon in possession of a firearm. Prior to this session, only felons previously convicted of a capital felony or a serious violent offense were guilty of a third degree felony if found to be in possession of a firearm. Now, the penalty for felons convicted of any offense who are found in possession of a firearm is a third degree felony. The bill also makes a significant change to the sentencing enhancement for the use of a firearm in the commission of a noncapital felony by redefining the enhancement, changing it from using a firearm to brandishing a firearm, which is a change that reflects federal criminal law. The bill increases the penalty for a first offense from one year to three years, except for serious youthful offenders and youthful offenders, and increases the penalty for a second or subsequent offense from three years to five years, also excepting serious youthful offenders and youthful offenders. Additionally, the bill removes language that prevented a judge from suspending or deferring the enhancement, thereby increasing judicial discretion in the use of this enhancement. Provisions affecting law enforcement officers include an amendment to a section of law regarding the Law Enforcement Protection Fund, allowing for distributions for recruiting, providing bonuses for and training law enforcement officers engaged in community-oriented policing. A contingency is also removed for distributions for law enforcement officer retention payments.

In House Judiciary Committee Substitute for House Bill 184 (Chapter 67), further changes are made to the Law Enforcement Protection Fund by replacing the funding formula for municipal police and county sheriff's departments with an annual base allocation of $45,000 for each and adding school district police departments to this allocation. University police departments' annual fund distributions are increased to $45,000, and commissioned officers in county sheriff's and municipal, university and tribal police departments receive a boost in funding to $1,000 per officer, with school district police officers also eligible. Furthermore, funding is provided to the Department of Public Safety for special deployments of state police officers and to school districts for school resource officers, who are defined as commissioned and certified law enforcement officers responsible for school safety and crime prevention in public schools who are required to receive certain training.

Through Senate Judiciary Committee Substitute for Senate Bill 5 (Chapter 5), New Mexico joins a growing number of states that have enacted some form of red-flag legislation. Pursuant to the Extreme Risk Firearm Protection Order Act, if a district court finds by a preponderance of the evidence that a person, i.e., a respondent, poses a significant danger of causing imminent personal injury to self or another by having a firearm, the court may order the respondent to relinquish the respondent's firearms either temporarily or for up to one year with the possibility of additional periods of up to one year. The order must be based on a petition filed by a law enforcement officer who has probable cause to believe that the respondent poses such a danger. The petition may be based upon a request from a person who personally knows the respondent, including a family member, a person with whom the respondent has or had a continuing personal relationship, an employer or a school administrator. The respondent may request termination of the order at any time, and a one-year extreme risk firearm protection order is final and immediately appealable.

The Electronic Communications Privacy Act regulates the acquisition of electronic communications information by governmental entities. The act includes requirements for warrants or court orders, limits the information that can be obtained and provides a procedure for emergency situations to obtain such information. Senate Bill 270 (Chapter 41) amends the act so that information obtained that is unrelated to the objective of a warrant or court order or that is not exculpatory to the target of the warrant or order is required to be sealed, subject to further court direction, rather than being almost immediately destroyed. That information, however, must be destroyed after termination of the investigation that prompted the warrant or order and related investigations. The legislation also provides that electronic communications information voluntarily disclosed by an electronic communications provider is required to be sealed, subject to further disclosure by court order or as required by law. Furthermore, in emergency situations involving possible death or injury to a natural person, where the governmental entity has obtained electronic communications information prior to applying for a warrant or court order, the entity must apply for approval to a court within three days of obtaining the information. However, if the court determines that no emergency exists, the information must be sealed, subject to later court order. The act is additionally amended to permit a governmental entity to compel an employee to return an electronic communications device owned by the entity. The legislation also modifies reporting provisions.

Courts are also affected by legislative changes made this year. With the enactment of Senate Judiciary Committee Substitute for Senate Bill 185 (Chapter 40), the legislature increases the number of district court judges in the First Judicial District from nine to 10, the number of district court judges in the Second Judicial District from 27 to 29, the number of district court judges in the Third Judicial District from eight to nine and the number of district court judges in the Twelfth Judicial District from four to five. In addition to providing these increases, the bill removes language requiring certain judges of divisions in the Sixth, Eighth, Ninth, Eleventh, Twelfth and Thirteenth judicial districts to reside in specific counties.

EDUCATION

As usual, education was an actively discussed topic this year, even in the subject-limited short session, with many bills introduced related to public education and higher education. While there was a paucity of education-related statutory changes passed in this year's session, those bills that did become law concern topics such as an elimination of copayments for reduced-fee school meals, adjusting the at-risk index, providing transparency in school budget reporting and in the cost of private post-secondary educational institutions, changing the calculation of funding from the Public School Capital Improvements Act and several provisions to help teachers, including funding for beginning teacher mentorship programs, a teacher residency program and a new scholarship for teachers seeking national board certification.

Public Schools

While there were not many education-related bills that were enacted into law, the state budget contains significant funding for a variety of public education initiatives. In the GAA, an additional $31.2 million in special appropriations is appropriated to the Public Education Department in Section 4 for such things as early literacy and reading support; community school initiatives; indigenous, multilingual, multicultural and special education; teacher and principal professional development; breakfast for elementary students and school lunch copayments for reduced-fee lunch; and science, technology, engineering and mathematics initiatives. In the GAA's appropriation for Public School Support in Section 4, funding is provided for several measures, including $30 million for school districts and charter schools to purchase culturally and linguistically appropriate instructional materials for eligible students; $11 million to comply with statutory budget requirements passed in 2019 that expand the information required in each school district's and charter school's educational plan, to comply with statutory mentorship requirements and to provide targeted and ongoing professional development focused on case management, tutoring, data-guided instruction, coaching and other evidence-based practices that improve student outcomes; and $10 million to provide evidence-based structured literacy interventions and to develop literacy collaborative models to improve reading and writing in kindergarten through second grade.

Section 5 special appropriations for the Public Education Department include: $2 million for career-technical education; $9 million to develop culturally and linguistically appropriate instructional materials and curricula; $3 million for a school budget transparency website; $2.9 million for school improvement grants; $1 million to place teachers in hard-to-staff schools; and $2 million for teacher residencies. Also in Section 5 is almost $19 million to the Public School Facilities Authority for maintenance, repairs and other infrastructure expenditures for impact aid school districts and state-chartered charter schools, to be disbursed in proportion to their impact aid revenue. The authority receives almost $1.6 million for safety and statewide deployment of mobile panic buttons at public schools, subject to local match. Additionally, the Public Education Department receives just under $3 million for three computer system projects, including a data exchange system for educator preparation programs; a consolidated grant management system for public schools, regional education cooperatives and tribal partners to manage federal and state grants; and implementation of a real-time data management system.

Among the bills that became law regarding education, House Bill 59 (Chapter 23) amends the Public School Finance Act by increasing the at-risk multiplier from 0.25 to 0.30 to determine the at-risk index, which is funded through a $50.1 million appropriation in the GAA.

The federal government, through the federal school breakfast program and the national school lunch program, provides funding for free and reduced-fee school meals for low-income students based on its income eligibility guidelines. In House Bill 10 (Chapter 12), copayments for reduced-fee school meals are eliminated, and the GAA appropriates $650,000 for lunch copayments.

In order to create transparency among schools and school districts regarding funding, Senate Education Committee Substitute for Senate Bill 96 (Chapter 71) tasks the Public Education Department with establishing and updating annually a statewide online financial reporting system that is based on a standard chart of accounts. The bill creates guidelines for the Public Education Department to follow, including enabling the system to show comparisons between schools, local education agencies and regional education cooperatives and displaying administrative costs for schools and local education agencies.

While mentorship for beginning teachers has been required since teacher licensing levels were created in 2003, public schools have struggled with the requirement, chiefly because of limited funding.

To address this, House Bill 62 (Chapter 24) creates the Beginning Teacher Mentorship Fund and provides a distribution from the fund of up to $2,000 per year per beginning teacher for mentorship programs in school districts and charter schools. The GAA provides nearly $3.5 million for teacher professional development, which includes teacher mentorship.

To diversify the teaching profession and fill high-need teaching positions across the state, House Bill 92 (Chapter 25) enacts the Teacher Residency Act, which provides grants to establish teacher residency programs at public post-secondary educational institutions and tribal colleges that have Public Education Department-approved teacher preparation programs. In turn, these institutions or tribal colleges establish partnerships with one or more school districts or charter schools to co-administer the program and to provide employment to program participants following graduation. To be eligible for a teacher residency program, an individual must hold a bachelor's degree and be either a professional from outside the field of education or not a holder of a level one, two or three-A teaching license.

To provide scholarships to teachers who are seeking certification from the National Board for Professional Teaching Standards, House Bill 102 (Chapter 26) enacts the National Board Certification Scholarship Act. The scholarship is equal to the certification fees assessed by the national board and shall not be for longer than three years. The GAA allocates $500,000 for these scholarships.

In order to allow students to graduate and receive their diplomas, students who transfer to another public school are permitted to receive credit for completed course work even if the transfer occurs before the end of the grading period pursuant to Senate Bill 130 (Chapter 50).

Public School Capital Outlay

The state funding calculation in the Public School Capital Improvements Act is amended to increase distributions from the Public School Capital Improvements Fund, and an additional distribution from that fund is created, for capital outlay funding for school districts that impose a public school capital improvements tax and charter schools in those districts by House Bill 254 (Chapter 64). The state funding calculation is based on a program guarantee amount, and school districts either get a minimum or maximum guarantee adjustment to that amount depending on the funds school districts generate from the public school capital improvements tax. The bill adjusts the amount included through the minimum and maximum guarantee adjustment, as well as the types of program units included in the calculation.

Post-Secondary Education

In its ongoing efforts to improve consumer protection of New Mexicans, and in this case primarily a cohort of young adults, the legislature passed House Education Committee Substitute for House Bill 17 (Chapter 55). Pursuant to the new law, every private post-secondary educational institution that falls under the authority of the Higher Education Department must disclose the total estimated cost of attendance on its website and disclose to every person who demonstrates an interest in becoming a student prior to that person enrolling in the institution the total estimated cost of attendance for the prospective student's program.

EMPLOYMENT AND LABOR

Enacted legislation relating to employment and labor focused on limiting confidentiality provisions in certain settlement agreements with private employers and changing prevailing wage laws for public works contracts, both of which seek to protect employees in areas of contract law where an employee's bargaining power may be limited.

House Bill 21 (Chapter 16) prohibits private employers from using confidentiality provisions in settlement agreements in sexual harassment, discrimination and retaliation claims. Confidentiality provisions are allowed in instances where the information relates to the monetary amount of a settlement or if confidentiality is sought at the employee's request to prohibit the disclosure of facts that could identify the employee, unless such disclosure is required for a judicial, administrative or governmental proceeding pursuant to a valid subpoena or as otherwise required by law.

The Public Works Minimum Wage Act requires that in public works project contracts with a value greater than $60,000, workers must be paid wages that are prevailing in the area of the project. This prevailing wage is determined by the director of the Labor Relations Division of the Workforce Solutions Department from collective bargaining agreement wages and fringe benefits paid to similar workers as those on the public works project. Currently, payment of the prevailing wage is enforceable by the director if the director determines that wages have been underpaid. Senate Judiciary Committee Substitute for Senate Bill 98 (Chapter 47) amends the act to allow a worker to bring a complaint of underpayment and creates a procedure that can lead to either resolution of the complaint, including the use of mediation, or enforcement. To encourage proper wage payment, the bill provides that if a contractor or employer makes an underpayment of the required prevailing wages to a worker for any reason, the contractor or employer is liable to the worker for three times the amount of wages underpaid.

ENERGY, ENVIRONMENT AND NATURAL RESOURCES

Several bills were passed and signed into law this session relating to energy, environment and natural resources. With this session's enactments, the state, utilities and local entities are given tools to modernize New Mexico's electric grid, and utilities providing natural gas are incentivized to implement energy efficiency programs. Other enactments strengthen the Department of Environment's ability to carry out its mission, centralize the state's outdoor recreation initiatives in the Economic Development Department and enhance litter control and environmental beautification programs.

Much of New Mexico's electric grid is decades old and ill-equipped to handle the state's transition to using more renewable energy sources. House Bill 233 (Chapter 15) supports technological updates to the grid and provides an array of tools to support grid modernization. This legislation provides a cost recovery mechanism for public utilities, subject to approval of the Public Regulation Commission, to undertake grid modernization projects. Also, the Energy, Minerals and Natural Resources Department is directed to develop a road map that details the state's priorities and strategies to modernize New Mexico's electric grid and to establish a grant program to assist local and tribal entities with implementing innovative grid modernization projects.

Pursuant to the Efficient Use of Energy Act, the Public Regulation Commission is authorized to remove regulatory disincentives to a utility's implementation of energy efficiency programs through the adoption of a rate adjustment mechanism that allows the utility to recover the same revenue per customer as approved in the utility's general rate case regardless of the amount of electricity actually sold. House Bill 93 (Chapter 17) clarifies that a rate adjustment mechanism may also be adopted to ensure that revenue remains constant without regard to the amount of natural gas sold.

In line with the Department of Environment's goal of becoming an enterprise agency, House Bill 312 (Chapter 32) eliminates several treasury funds administered by the Department of Environment and consolidates the funds into a newly created Environmental Health Fund to be the repository of fees collected by the department in its regulation of on-site liquid waste systems and water recreation facilities pursuant to the Environmental Improvement Act, food establishments pursuant to the Food Service Sanitation Act and hemp pursuant to the Hemp Manufacturing Act. The Department of Environment is allowed to use the Environmental Health Fund for administration of any of its regulations pertaining to on-site liquid waste systems, water recreation facilities, food establishments and hemp.

In 2019, the Outdoor Equity Grant Program was created for the New Mexico Youth Conservation Corps Commission to award grants to political subdivisions, Indian nations, tribes and pueblos and nonprofit organizations for the sole purpose of funding outdoor recreation programs for youth up to the age of 18. House Bill 304 (Chapter 65) transfers responsibility for administering the grant program from the New Mexico Youth Conservation Corps Commission to the New Mexico Outdoor Recreation Division of the Economic Development Department.

Changes to the Litter Control and Beautification Act are made in House Bill 317 (Chapter 33), including defining the "Keep America Beautiful Program" as a comprehensive program under the direction of the Tourism Department to end littering, improve recycling and beautify American communities, deleting references to a specific nonprofit organization that had been inactive and permitting the number of members of the New Mexico Clean and Beautiful Advisory Committee to range from seven to 11. Moreover, the bill revises the target expenditures from the Litter Control and Beautification Fund for local keep America beautiful programs, youth employment programs, nonprofit organizations' beautification and related educational programs and operating expenses for the New Mexico Clean and Beautiful Program.

HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES

This session, an assortment of bills related to health and human services became law. Enacted legislation relating to health insurance issues includes changes in the operation of the New Mexico Health Insurance Exchange, capping copayments on insulin, expanding covered services and establishing new reimbursement rates for certain providers. Motivated by the rising cost of prescription drugs, the legislature passed a bill to create and implement a wholesale prescription drug importation program. Additionally, bills were passed to resolve an ongoing dispute over whether certain out-of-state residents can enroll in New Mexico's medical cannabis program, to amend the Assisted Outpatient Treatment Act and to protect pregnant workers from discrimination.

The New Mexico Insurance Exchange Act was enacted in 2013 with the original purpose of providing qualified individuals and employers increased access to health insurance. House Judiciary Committee Substitute for House Bill 100 (Chapter 35) amends the act by defining the three types of standardized health insurance plans with increasing levels of coverage to be offered through the New Mexico Health Insurance Exchange, known as the bronze, silver and gold plans, and describing, in detail, the persons and small businesses that can enroll in or offer health insurance plans through the exchange. In addition, the bill requires the exchange's board of directors to review its plan of operation to ensure that the exchange is operating with best practices in the health insurance industry and provides the board of directors with several new powers and duties, including consulting with the superintendent of insurance to create standards and criteria for health benefit plans offered through the exchange, vetting health insurance issuers, administering and regulating the exchange and providing options for employers to access health coverage for their employees. The board of directors is also given the power to establish the standardized bronze, silver and gold plans; however, health insurance issuers are also allowed to offer nonstandard plans. Finally, the bill requires the board of directors to make regular public reports about the work of the exchange, including the number of people and businesses enrolled in health insurance plans offered through the exchange and analysis of the exchange demographics, health plan pricing, the individual health plan market and the impact of offering standardized health plans.

According to the Department of Health, in 2017, heart disease was the leading cause of death in New Mexico and accounted for over 20% of all deaths. Additionally, the federal Centers for Disease Control and Prevention reports that the most common type of heart disease is coronary artery disease, which can lead to a heart attack. A coronary artery calcium scan measures coronary artery calcium for atherosclerosis and abnormal artery structure and function. With the passage of House Bill 126 (Chapter 79), beginning in January 2021, all health insurance products offered in New Mexico will be required to cover the cost of the scan for individuals between the ages of 45 and 65 who are determined to be at intermediate risk for developing heart disease, according to an evidence-based algorithm.

Many New Mexico residents struggle with paying for the costs of prescription drugs, particularly drugs required to treat chronic conditions. House Bill 292 (Chapter 36) addresses one such drug, insulin, by capping the copayment that an insurance company can require a patient to pay for preferred formulary prescription insulin or medically necessary alternatives at $25.00 for a 30-day supply. The bill covers all health care insurers, regardless of how they are organized. It also includes a temporary provision that requires the superintendent of insurance to convene an advisory group to study the cost of prescription drugs for New Mexico consumers and make recommendations on increasing the accessibility of prescription drugs. At a minimum, the study is required to consider potential cost-sharing limitations for nine other drugs, including inhaled prescription asthma drugs, oral diabetic medications, injectable epinephrine devices, opioid reversal agents, hypertension medications, antidepressant and antipsychotic medications, lipid-lowering agents and anticonvulsants.

Another initiative toward making prescription drugs more affordable has been taken with the enactment of the Wholesale Prescription Drug Importation Act in Senate Bill 1 (Chapter 45). That act creates the "Wholesale Prescription Drug Importation Program", which will be submitted for federal approval on or before December 15, 2020. Once the state receives certification of approval by the United States secretary of health and human services, the Department of Health shall begin implementing the program, which is required to be operational within six months of federal approval. The state will contract with one or more approved Canadian drug suppliers, New Mexico drug wholesalers and New Mexico drug distributors to carry out the program. Moreover, the bill provides that the act may be extended to include any other country allowed by federal law to import prescription drugs into the United States. After implementation, the Department of Health is required to report annually to the legislature and the governor.

In New Mexico, certain advanced practice pharmacists are permitted to prescribe vaccinations, emergency contraception, tobacco cessation products, tuberculosis testing, naloxone and hormonal contraception, helping to address the shortage of primary care providers that is particularly acute in rural areas of the state. Previously, advanced practice pharmacists who provided these prescriptive services within an insurer's network were reimbursed for the cost of the prescribed drug, while licensed physicians, physician assistants and certified advanced practice nurse practitioners within the same network received a higher rate of reimbursement for the same services. House Bill 42 (Chapter 58) rectifies this situation by requiring insurers to reimburse advanced practice pharmacists for their prescriptive services, creating reimbursement parity with licensed physicians, physician assistants and nurse practitioners who provide identical services in the same network.

The Lynn and Erin Compassionate Use Act was enacted in 2007 to legalize the use of medical cannabis by qualified patients residing in New Mexico to alleviate certain medical conditions. In 2019, the act was amended to remove language requiring New Mexico residency from the definition of "qualified patient". Subsequently, a group of out-of-state plaintiffs sued the Department of Health when it placed their applications to enroll in the medical cannabis program on hold. The First Judicial District Court ruled in favor of the plaintiffs, although the department's appeal is currently pending. The legislature subsequently passed Senate Bill 139 (Chapter 4) to restore the New Mexico residency requirement language to the definition of "qualified patient". The bill does not affect reciprocity for out-of-state patients who are already enrolled in medical cannabis programs, operated by their home states, to obtain medical cannabis while present in New Mexico.

Enacted in 2016, the Assisted Outpatient Treatment Act provides a process for a court to order a person to participate in assisted outpatient treatment for a mental disorder if the court finds, upon a petition filed by an interested party, that the person has been diagnosed with a mental disorder and may, among other considerations, be at risk for harming the person's self or others. Senate Bill 128 (Chapter 44) makes two changes to the act. First, it adds comprehensive community support services and intensive outpatient services to the categories of outpatient services in which a court may order a person to participate; and second, it eliminates the delayed repeal that was set to occur on July 1, 2021, thus making the act permanent.

The Pregnant Worker Accommodation Act, enacted in House Bill 25 (Chapter 49), extends the Human Rights Act to prohibit discrimination related to pregnancy, childbirth or conditions related to pregnancy or childbirth in the context of employment and labor organization membership, as well as public accommodation, housing accommodation and financial assistance related to housing accommodation or real property or for consumer credit. The new law also requires employers to provide reasonable accommodation to enable pregnant workers to continue performing their essential job duties, as long as the reasonable accommodation does not cause the employer undue hardship. With the passage of this bill, New Mexico joins 22 states and the District of Columbia with similar laws prohibiting pregnancy discrimination.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT AND SPECIAL DISTRICTS

One local government and special districts bill, relating to the Eastern New Mexico Water Utility Authority, was passed and signed into law this year. Created in statute, the Eastern New Mexico Water Utility Authority is a regional water utility authority within Curry and Roosevelt counties that is authorized to develop and construct a water delivery system using federal, state and local funding to bring water from the Ute Reservoir to communities in the eastern part of the state. In the fall of 2019, Curry County, the Village of Melrose and the Village of Grady opted out of participating as members of the authority. House Bill 76 (Chapter 60) codifies this change in the authority's membership.

MILITARY AND VETERANS' AFFAIRS

The legislature continued its ongoing efforts to make New Mexico an attractive location for active military members and their families to be stationed and for veterans to relocate, and it acknowledged the service of combat veterans and specified military leave for Civil Air Patrol members by enacting three pieces of legislation.

In the past, when military families moved to New Mexico, there was often a cost associated with some family members becoming licensed to work in their fields of expertise. With the passage of House Bill 30 (Chapter 6), teaching and professional and occupational licenses must now be issued within 30 days and at no charge for the first three years of licensure for those that qualify for the license and are military service members, their spouses and dependent children and for veterans whose separation of service is within three years of application for licensure.

In 2003, the legislature passed a law to grant high school diplomas to those who left high school to serve in World War II. Then in 2005, the legislature passed a similar measure for Korean Conflict veterans. This year, with Senate Bill 99 (Chapter 72), the legislature does the same for Vietnam Conflict veterans.

House Bill 22 (Chapter 56) clarifies that members of the Civil Air Patrol are allowed military leave for official duties assigned by the director of the Civil Air Patrol Division of the Department of Military Affairs or an incident commander of an active mission.

MOTOR VEHICLES AND TRANSPORTATION

Regarding motor vehicles and transportation, the 2020 session saw the legislature add a new special vehicle registration plate and an update to the process for selling and registering vehicles.

From time to time, the legislature authorizes special vehicle registration plates that are intended to raise public awareness regarding a particular issue and potentially raise money to help address the issue.

House Bill 157 (Chapter 76) authorizes the issuance of a childhood cancer family support special registration plate, with a portion of the plate's proceeds going to the Department of Health to help fund childhood cancer awareness, outreach and education programs. However, the bill also contains provisions to cease production of the special registration plate if demand does not match certain benchmarks.

When a person buys a car or truck for personal or business use, an application must be submitted to the Taxation and Revenue Department for a vehicle registration plate and for a title to the vehicle. Until now, state law has required that the application be signed with a pen and ink. With the passage of Senate Judiciary Committee Substitute for Senate Bill 151 (Chapter 39), the application may be signed using an electronic signature.

PROFESSIONAL AND OCCUPATIONAL LICENSURE

In 2020, the legislature made two changes to professional and occupational licensure laws, including removing barriers for undocumented people to receive licensure or certification and expanding opportunities for applicants to take the certified public accountant examination.

Senate Judiciary Committee Substitute for Senate Bill 137 (Chapter 53) makes an affirmative statement that a person is eligible for professional licensure or certification for which that person is qualified, regardless of the person's citizenship or immigration status. House Bill 106 (Chapter 27) increases opportunities for applicants to take the examination to become a certified public accountant by requiring that the test be offered all year via a computer-based testing system and by eliminating a three-month waiting period to retake a failed section of the test.

PUBLIC OFFICERS AND EMPLOYEES

During the 2020 session, numerous bills relating to public officers and employees received messages from the governor. One area of particular focus was retirement funds for public employees. These bills addressed solvency by increasing contributions to the funds by employees and employers and altering the payments made from the funds to retirees. Additionally, retirement benefits were changed for certain educational retirees. Apart from public retirement, extensive changes were also made to public employee collective bargaining.

Currently, the accrued actuarial liability of the funds administered by the Public Employees Retirement Association is 72%. In the event of any future market downturn, the trend of this funded ratio would be negatively affected. Senate Bill 72 (Chapter 11) was crafted to address pension solvency and was the product of debate through a task force convened by the governor and the interim committee process. The legislation changes both the inflow and outflow of money from the retirement funds. The bill increases employee and employer contributions to the retirement funds of the association. Additionally, the bill changes the way cost-of-living adjustments (COLAs) are calculated. After three years of non-compounded thirteenth check payments, certain retirees will receive a COLA calculated based on investment returns and the funded ratio of the funds of the Public Employees Retirement Association. However, those on disability retirement, retirees over the age of 75 and retirees with 25 years of service whose pensions are less than $25,000 per year receive a compounding 2.5% COLA. The bill also makes the following changes: (1) the vesting period for current employees has been lowered to five years; (2) retirees are now eligible to begin receiving a COLA two years after retirement; and (3) the members of the juvenile correctional officers and adult and juvenile probation and parole officers retirement plans are permitted to hold an election on whether to join the state police and adult correctional officers retirement plan.

In addition to concerns over the solvency of the retirement system for public employees, the solvency of the Judicial Retirement Fund and Magistrate Retirement Fund is also strengthened. Senate Bill 122 (Chapter 38) diverts distributions currently made to the Legislative Retirement Fund to the Judicial Retirement Fund and Magistrate Retirement Fund instead. This diversion will occur until the funded ratio of the Legislative Retirement Fund falls below 100%. Currently, the funded ratio of the Legislative Retirement Fund is approximately 136%.

To address teacher and substitute teacher shortages, Senate Bill 111 (Chapter 10) amends the Educational Retirement Act to allow certain retirees to return to employment with a local administrative unit without suspending their retirement benefits, provided that the retiree completes a 90-day layout and earns no more than $15,000 a year. Additionally, this bill no longer requires that employees make nonrefundable contributions to the funds of the Educational Retirement Board if they have previously retired and are receiving a benefit under the Public Employees Retirement Act.

House Labor, Veterans' and Military Affairs Committee Substitute for House Bill 364 (Chapter 48) makes extensive changes to the Public Employee Bargaining Act. With the enactment of this bill, public employees are specifically permitted to engage in certain concerted activities for mutual aid or benefit, although they may still not go on strike. Local labor relations boards and the Public Employee Labor Relations Board may now impose actual damages related to dues, back pay and reinstatement, but not punitive damages or attorney fees. Additionally, the Public Employee Labor Relations Board is required to maintain a publicly accessible website with the current membership and rules of all labor boards. Public employers must now provide labor organizations with specific personal information of employees once a valid organizing petition is received and must provide a labor representative with specific access to employees once approved. Furthermore, public employers are specifically authorized to assume employee contribution obligations to retirement programs, but these employers may not use public funds to influence representation elections. A major focus of the bill is on local labor relations boards, which are permitted to continue, but only if certain conditions are met, including that public employers and labor organizations agree to retain them, local board rules are submitted for review and determined to be consistent with state law and local boards do not have a membership vacancy for longer than 60 days.

REGULATION AND LICENSING

Relating to regulation and licensing laws, one bill was passed by the legislature and signed by the governor that made major changes to the licensure of tobacco retailers, manufacturers and distributors and sales of tobacco products.

Senate Judiciary Committee Substitute for Senate Bill 131 (Chapter 46) repeals the Tobacco Products, E-Cigarette and Nicotine Liquid Container Act and replaces it with the enactment of the Tobacco Products Act. Consistent with federal regulations, the Tobacco Products Act establishes an increased age limit of 21 years for sales of all tobacco products, including e-cigarettes. In addition, the act establishes a licensing structure for tobacco products retailers, manufacturers and distributors. Pursuant to the new licensing requirements, a retailer, manufacturer or distributor cannot sell, manufacture or distribute tobacco products at any location in the state without first obtaining a license for that location. The Alcoholic Beverage Control Division of the Regulation and Licensing Department is the entity made responsible for license administration, while the Department of Public Safety has authority over all investigations and enforcement activities required under the Tobacco Products Act.

STATE GOVERNMENT

In the 2020 session, the legislature passed laws to attend to general state operations, including relocation of, and the creation of, various government entities. Additionally, legislative rules have been updated to require the inclusion of certain information on the legislature's website and to delay the start of prefiling legislation. Government transparency is enhanced by removal of a six-month confidentiality period related to certain records for claims for damages asserted against any governmental entity or public officer or employee. Finally, relating to property and procurement, the legislature passed measures to increase limits on how much a state agency may spend on a project's architectural or engineering service, change the term of certain land leases and allow the Interstate Stream Commission to sell a tract of undeveloped land near Carlsbad.

Entities

If Constitutional Amendment 1 is approved by voters on November 3, 2020, the Public Regulation Commission would no longer consist of five elected members from disparate geographic regions of the state but would be composed of three members who are nominated by a new nominating committee and appointed by the governor with the consent of the senate. To address this possibility, House Judiciary Committee Substitute for House Bill 386 (Chapter 9) removes references throughout the NMSA 1978 to public regulation commissioners being elected officials, establishes the Public Regulation Commission Nominating Committee and provides the process by which the nominating committee submits nominees to the governor. The professional qualifications for appointed public regulation commissioners are changed to specify that commissioners are independent of the industries regulated by the commission and to allow a person to additionally qualify for service as an appointed commissioner if the person has a post-graduate degree in a field related to an area regulated by the commission and at least 10 years of professional experience in that field. Also, if the commissioners are appointed, a commissioner may access retirement benefits under the Public Employees Retirement Act upon attaining 65 years or older and six or more years of service credit. If voters approve Constitutional Amendment 1, the nominating committee would begin its work on January 1, 2022, and the rest of the transition from elected to appointed commissioners would begin on January 1, 2023. Furthermore, in this bill the Fire Marshal Division is transferred from the Public Regulation Commission to the Homeland Security and Emergency Management Department and is renamed the State Fire Marshal's Office, and the Fire Services Council is created to advise the State Fire Marshal's Office on fire and emergency services policy.

In the New Mexico Insurance Code, the Insurance Nominating Committee is created for the sole purpose of appointing the superintendent of insurance and determining the superintendent's salary.

House Bill 234 (Chapter 63) clarifies when the committee shall meet in anticipation of a vacancy in the position of superintendent or the expiration of the superintendent's term, and it also provides that upon a vacancy in the position of superintendent, the chair of the committee may appoint an interim superintendent who shall serve until a successor is duly qualified. Finally, the superintendent is no longer required to be a resident of New Mexico when appointed.

While public pension solvency was a topic of focus during the 2020 session, concerns about an increasingly aging population resulted in a measure creating retirement savings for workers in the private sector. House Bill 44 (Chapter 7) enacts the New Mexico Work and Save Act, which creates the New Mexico Work and Save Board, under the supervision of the state treasurer, to oversee the implementation of private sector, employee-funded savings accounts. Employees are offered the opportunity to have money deducted from their paychecks and deposited in state-managed investment accounts with the purpose of providing supplemental income in retirement.

Legislature

Regarding changes to legislative procedure, House Resolution 1 enacts a new House rule that provides that the chief clerk must furnish roll call votes on motions to table bills, resolutions or memorials for publication on the legislature's website, and while publication of votes on motions to table legislation does not apply to the House Appropriations and Finance Committee or the House Taxation and Revenue Committee, the legislature's website must contain an explanation of why these motions to table for these committees are not published. Meanwhile, House Resolution 4 and Senate Resolution 1 make the same two changes to the House rules and Senate rules, respectively, one revision to move the start date to prefile legislation from December 15 to January 1, and the other revision to require that floor amendments and committee amendments are posted on the legislature's website, as soon as practicable after adoption, in a document that clearly incorporates the amendments into its text.

Open Records

Previously, state statutes provided that certain records related to claims for damages asserted against any governmental entity or public officer or employee would remain confidential for at least six months. With the enactment of Senate Judiciary Committee Substitute for Senate Bill 64 (Chapter 37), the six-month confidentiality period is eliminated, and the bill requires that such records be available for public inspection on or after the date a final judgment is issued and all rights of appeal have been exhausted or the date a settlement agreement is signed by all parties, whichever occurs first. Also, the bill eliminates criminal and employment penalties for anyone who discloses such records prior to the date permitted by statute.

Property and Procurement

House Bill 319 (Chapter 66) increases limits on the total amount a state agency or local public body may spend on multiple architectural or engineering services contracts for multiple projects under a single qualifications-based request for proposals and also on multiple indefinite quantity construction contracts pursuant to a price agreement for multiple projects under a single request for proposals. State executive agencies and local public bodies are required to provide reports to the Legislative Finance Committee and the Purchasing Division of the General Services Department on the aggregate amount of contracts for each contractor and the corresponding amounts to be spent under each applicable multiple source contract.

House Bill 176 (Chapter 21) extends the term limit of certain land leases that may be entered into between the state and municipalities or counties from 25 years to 40 years. The bill also clarifies the process for establishing these types of leases.

The Interstate Stream Commission holds title to a tract of undeveloped land near Carlsbad that the commission has determined is no longer needed for its purposes. State law provides that in this situation, the commission may sell the property by requesting competitive sealed bids from interested potential purchasers. Before the sale can be finalized, state law also requires that in cases of public property sales where the property value is $100,000 or more, the legislature must ratify and approve the sale. With the adoption of House Joint Resolution 4, the commission has approval to sell the property for the winning purchase bid of $354,701, which is significantly more than the approved appraisal value of $195,000. The proceeds of the sale will be deposited in the Pecos River Basin Land Management Fund for use by the commission in the lower Pecos River Basin.

TAXATION

With the economy still looking strong while the session was taking place, the expiration dates of multiple existing tax incentives were extended, and two new tax incentives were created. The most extensive tax bill that passed incorporates multiple technical changes and clarifications to existing provisions of the tax code. Furthermore, several bills were enacted into law addressing tax administration, as well as one clarifying a property tax benefit and one affecting local governments.

Extensive changes to the tax code are made in House Bill 326 (Chapter 80). Those changes include:

- ◆ directing the Taxation and Revenue Department to create business location codes, provide business location instructions and allow offsetting of certain erroneously paid compensating taxes against gross receipts tax due;
- ◆ amending the definition of "manufacturing" in the Uniform Division of Income for Tax Purposes Act to allow, until 2024, wind and solar farms that produce wholesale electric power and are regulated by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, and not by the Public Regulation Commission, to qualify for a "sales-only" factor in determining apportioned corporate income tax liability;
- ◆ amending definitions related to construction services in the Gross Receipts and Compensating Tax Act for purposes of destination sourcing;
- ◆ expanding a gross receipts tax deduction for marketplace sellers to allow governmental gross receipts to be deducted;
- ◆ extending the date of a tax credit provided in the Investment Credit Act; setting a termination date for the credit; providing a calculation for the credit if the sale of qualified equipment for which the credit is allowed is subject to the gross receipts tax and providing a calculation for the credit if the qualified equipment is not subject to the gross receipts tax or the compensating tax; and providing that the credit will be claimed against a taxpayer's state and local tax liabilities; and
- ◆ providing that increments of the municipal gross receipts tax and the county gross receipts tax shall be imposed in increments of one-hundredths percent and that ordinances imposing increments of certain local option gross receipts taxes repealed by last year's tax reform bill are imposing increments of the municipal gross receipts tax and the county gross receipts tax.

In regard to tax administration, Senate Bill 116 (Chapter 43) authorizes an employee of the Taxation and Revenue Department to reveal necessary tax return information to the secretary of public safety and the secretary of transportation if it concerns the Weight Distance Tax Act; the secretary of energy, minerals and natural resources if it concerns tax credits or deductions for which eligibility is certified or otherwise determined by the secretary; and the secretary of environment if it concerns tax credits for which eligibility is certified or otherwise determined by the secretary. House Bill 158 (Chapter 28) transfers the review and approval of angel investment credits from the Economic Development Department to the Taxation and Revenue Department, while still requiring application materials for the credit to continue to be sent to the Economic Development Department. Lastly, the time frame of a distribution of gross receipts tax revenue to the State Aviation Fund is extended to June 30, 2031 by the passage of House Bill 193 (Chapter 30).

Two bills allow new credits against the gross receipts tax and the income tax. The technology readiness gross receipts tax credit, enacted by House Bill 255 (Chapter 22), allows national laboratories up to $4.5 million in credits over three years against the state gross receipts tax for providing technological assistance to businesses that have licensed a technology from the national laboratory or that are participants in a cooperative research and development agreement with the national laboratory. The purpose of the credit, which will expire in 2023, is to help businesses achieve technology maturation of the businesses' technologies developed at the laboratories. Senate Bill 29 (Chapter 13) creates the new solar market development income tax credit of up to $6,000 for taxpayers that purchase and install a solar thermal system or a photovoltaic system in a residence, business or agricultural enterprise. The aggregate amount of credits allowed per calendar year is $8 million, and the credit applies to taxable years beginning prior to January 1, 2028.

In addition to the credit pursuant to the Investment Credit Act that is extended by House Bill 326, as discussed above, the following three bills extend the lives of existing tax incentives:

- ◆ House Bill 109 (Chapter 18) extends a deduction from gross receipts and governmental gross receipts for durable medical equipment to 2030;
- ◆ House Bill 146 (Chapter 20) extends the agricultural biomass income tax credit and agricultural biomass corporate income tax credit to taxable years beginning prior to 2030 and requires reporting on the cost of the credits; and
- ◆ House Bill 170 (Chapter 29) extends a deduction from gross receipts for certain retail sales made by small businesses in New Mexico on the first Saturday after Thanksgiving, known as "small business Saturday", to 2025.

Senate Bill 117 (Chapter 73) makes a technical correction to clarify the property tax benefit that provides a limitation on property tax valuation increases for low-income disabled persons. It also changes the ability of a taxpayer to show three previous years of proof of income to avoid reapplying for the benefit each year by requiring that taxpayers provide proof of income for three subsequent years before application is no longer necessary.

The lodgers' tax that counties and municipalities may impose can now capture revenue from temporary lodging beyond the initial 30 days of rent. With the passage of House Taxation and Revenue Committee Substitute for House Bill 117 (Chapter 19), the county or municipality may use the proceeds of the post-30-day lodgers' tax revenue for any purpose, provided that the use is stated in the ordinance imposing the tax.

FIRST SPECIAL SESSION, 2020

Several weeks after the regular session ended, the COVID-19 pandemic invaded New Mexico, and in response, a public health emergency and soon after that a stay-at-home order were declared. As a result, schools, venues and many businesses shut down, causing a spike in unemployment and a growing sense of economic uncertainty. Simultaneously, oil and gas prices dropped precipitously, throwing the solvency of the recently enacted state budget into turmoil. In order to address the ensuing economic havoc, the governor called a special session on June 18, 2020 that lasted four days and was held in conformance with COVID-19-safe practices, including the unprecedented closure of the State Capitol to the public and holding standing committee meetings virtually. In the end, the legislature passed several bills to address budget shortfalls for FY 2020 and FY 2021, aid small businesses affected by the pandemic and provide tax relief, and it also passed a bill to address public safety concerns for the upcoming November general election. Additionally, partly in response to protests nationwide regarding police brutality and racial injustice, the legislature passed and the governor signed two bills, one requiring law enforcement agencies statewide to use body-worn cameras and one creating the New Mexico Civil Rights Commission.

House Bill 1 (Chapter 5, p.v.) was enacted in response to an estimated reduction in General Fund revenue, due in part to COVID-19 and a downturn in oil and gas prices. To address the decrease in available General Fund revenue for FY 2020 and FY 2021, the bill requires a 4% reduction to all appropriations in the GAA for each agency under the executive, judicial and legislative branches of government, with a few exceptions. In addition, the bill provides targeted reductions to certain agencies and programs throughout state government, including the cancellation of certain special appropriations and compensation increases for public employees that were in the GAA. To further supplement budget solvency, the bill also authorizes the use of federal funding provided through the federal Coronavirus Aid, Relief, and Economic Security Act as well as the use of money in the Tax Stabilization Reserve and the Tobacco Settlement Permanent Fund, provided that certain requirements are met. Details of House Bill 1 are in Table 3 of Appendix B.

Another bill intended to restore the health of the General Fund, Senate Bill 5 (Chapter 3, p.v.) reverts balances from various appropriations for capital projects and makes a number of transfers. The unexpended or unencumbered balances of certain General Fund appropriations made in 2019 to various agencies are reverted. Each reversion is scheduled to occur 90 days after the effective date of the legislation, but a reversion is void if, before that deadline, the recipient agency certifies that it has incurred a substantial binding obligation to a third party to expend at least 5% of the appropriation for that project. The bill also authorizes the State Board of Finance to issue additional short-term severance tax bonds and appropriates the proceeds primarily for projects authorized during the 2020 legislative session. In addition, the issuance of additional short-term supplemental severance tax bonds is authorized, subject to the necessary certification by the Public School Capital Outlay Council.

An amount of $75 million of the appropriation for various transportation projects, initially made in the General Appropriation Act of 2019, is additionally reverted to the General Fund pursuant to the bill. However, a principal amount of $75 million of the $1.585 billion in previously authorized state transportation project bonds is permitted to be issued on or after July 1, 2022 for those same projects. Furthermore, approximately $29.6 million after line-item vetoes in transfers from various funds is made to the FY 2020 Appropriation Account of the General Fund, and an additional transfer of $2 million is made to the Appropriation Contingency Fund of the General Fund. The bill also repeals the provisions of Laws 2020, Chapter 64, which are summarized in the discussion of House Bill 254 in the Education section of these Highlights. Details of fund transfer amounts are in Table 3 of Appendix B, and details of capital project reversions are in Table 14 of Appendix C.

In addition to bills concerning budget solvency, the legislature passed and the governor signed Senate Bill 3 (Chapter 6) enacting the Small Business Recovery Act of 2020 to assist small businesses in meeting financial obligations during the COVID-19 pandemic. The bill provides loans from the Severance Tax Permanent Fund to certain small businesses in New Mexico through a program administered by the NMFA. These loans will be calculated based on the decline in revenue that the business has experienced due to COVID-19, provided that the loan does not exceed $75,000. Small businesses receiving these loans are required to certify certain information to the NMFA and may use the loans for all expenses, including expenses incurred to operate the business in compliance with a public health order.

To provide further economic relief, House Bill 6 (Chapter 4) implements several tax-related measures, including the enactment of several temporary provisions to waive, for a limited period, penalties and interest for failure to pay tax liabilities for: personal and corporate income taxes; withholding taxes; oil and gas proceeds and pass-through entity withholding taxes; gross receipts and compensating taxes; those liabilities assessed as the result of a managed audit; and property taxes. Additionally, the bill doubles an existing distribution of gross receipts tax revenue to cities and counties, but the distribution will be reduced to the original amount if the federal government provides money for local governments due to revenue declines attributable to the pandemic. The more narrowly targeted provisions include an exemption from the gross receipts tax for payments received by certain health care providers pursuant to the federal Coronavirus Aid, Relief, and Economic Security Act as well as a provision changing the definition of "net operating loss deduction" in the Corporate Income and Franchise Tax Act. This change is intended to conform to the definitions found in the federal Tax Cuts and Jobs Act and will prevent unintended changes to administration of the corporate income tax that would have been caused due to changes made by the federal Coronavirus Aid, Relief, and Economic Security Act.

During the June 2, 2020 primary election, more than 247,000 voters reportedly cast their vote by absentee ballot, nearly 10 times the amount recorded in the 2016 primary. This increase was in large part a response to the COVID-19 pandemic and a New Mexico Supreme Court order that required county clerks to send absentee ballot applications to all voters eligible to vote in the primary. Senate Bill 4 (Chapter 2) authorizes county clerks to send out absentee ballot applications to all mailable voters for the 2020 general election, provides procedures for returning ballots, converts some polling places into mail ballot election precincts while keeping others open to in-person voting and institutes other modifications to existing election procedures to allow election officials to safely and efficiently cope with the election process during the ongoing pandemic. To that end, it also establishes a process whereby further changes may be made to election procedures if a public health emergency is declared for a particular county or area of the state before election day. Election Code changes in this legislation additionally allow a decline-to-state, independent or minor party voter to update the voter's certificate of registration on the day of a primary election to register as a member of a major political party and vote in that party's primary.

The special session also featured the enactment of two non-pandemic-related bills. With Senate Bill 8 (Chapter 7), New Mexico joins several other states in requiring law enforcement agencies to use body-worn cameras. In addition, the bill provides that any failure to comply with policies and procedures governing the use of these cameras results in a presumption that the officer acted in bad faith and the officer is deemed liable for the independent tort of negligent spoliation of evidence or the independent tort of intentional spoliation of evidence. The bill also requires the New Mexico Law Enforcement Academy Board to permanently revoke the police certification of an officer convicted of a crime involving the unlawful use or threatened use of physical force or a crime involving the failure to intervene in the use of unlawful force. Finally, the bill creates two new waivers for immunity granted under the Tort Claims Act for the independent tort of negligent spoliation of evidence and the independent tort of intentional spoliation of evidence.

In House Bill 5 (Chapter 1), the New Mexico Civil Rights Commission is created. The appointed nine-member commission is tasked with reviewing three matters: a creation of a civil right of action for violations of state law by public officials; the use of qualified immunity by public officials; and the need and costs for additional insurance policies for public officials who would be found liable under the action. The work of the commission is not limited to qualified immunity as it is applied to law enforcement officers, but rather qualified immunity as it is used generally and by public officials. By November 15, 2020, the commission is required to submit a report of its findings and proposed legislation to the governor, the New Mexico Legislative Council and the interim committee dealing with court, corrections and justice issues.
