INTRODUCTION

In general, taxes are imposed for the purpose of raising revenue for state and local government services. A deviation from a tax reduces the amount of revenue the tax would otherwise raise if not for the deviation. The most common types of deviations are credits, deductions and exemptions.¹

This report identifies 308 deviations. Of those, 138 are defined as tax expenditures,² 97 are not tax expenditures, 24 are defined as “arguable” because good arguments can be made either way, and 49 are currently undefined.

TAX EXPENDITURE CATEGORIES

In this report, the 138 deviations defined as tax expenditures have been divided into the seven categories³ described below. The Tax Expenditure Reports⁴ (TER) published by the Taxation and Revenue Department are used as the primary source to define and categorize the purpose of a deviation; however, the statutes and fiscal impact reports are used as well. If this report differs with a TER in regard to the categorization of a deviation, the “Deviation Details” section provides a brief reason for the difference.

See the “Tax Expenditures by Category” section for the tax expenditures included in each of the seven categories and their 2015 estimated revenue costs.

Many Citizen Benefit expenditures are intended to provide direct tax relief either to all citizens, such as the deduction from gross receipts for the sale of food (7-9-92), or to a class of citizens, such as the property tax exemption for veterans (7-37-5). Others are intended to provide benefits to citizens indirectly, such as the Affordable Housing Tax Credit (7-9I-5) and the corporate-supported child care credit (7-2A-14).

Economic Development expenditures are primarily designed to stimulate the economy, create jobs and attract industry. These expenditures include the Angel Investment Credit (7-2-18.17), the High-Wage Jobs Tax Credit (7-9G-1) and the film and television credits (7-9F-1 et seq.).

Expenditures for the Environment, Conservation and Renewable Energy category are designed to promote a cleaner environment, conservation and renewable energy technology. They include the solar market development tax credit (7-2-18.14), the New Sustainable Building Tax Credits (7-2-18.29 and 7-2A-28) and several expenditures involving biodiesel.

Extractive Industries expenditures are focused on the industries involved in mining and severing oil, natural gas, uranium, timber, potash and other natural resources.

Health Care Industry expenditures address a variety of health care related issues, including those intended to retain health care practitioners in the state, such as the health care practitioners’ deduction (7-9-93); increase accessibility to health care, such as the Rural Health

² For a discussion on what is a tax expenditure, see the 2016 TER.

Care Practitioner Tax Credit (7-2-18.22); and reduce the cost of health care services to patients, such as the hearing and vision aids deduction (7-9-111).

Non Profits expenditures have been enacted to benefit charitable organizations that have been granted exemption from the federal income tax as an organization described in Section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986.

The category Other includes expenditures that can't be included in other categories either because the original intent of the expenditure can't be determined or it appears the expenditure was intended to promote or subsidize a particular industry or profession, including aerospace, agriculture, boxing, newspapers and jockeys.

ESTIMATED REVENUE COSTS

The table below provides totals of the estimated revenue costs of tax expenditures as reported in the TERs.⁵ The estimated revenue cost in a given year may change in future TERs. This could be due to a variety of reasons, including taxpayers filing or amending returns after the publication of a TER, more or fewer tax expenditures being included in a future TER, or new sources for estimating revenue costs becoming available.

The reliability of the estimated revenue cost of tax expenditures should be taken into consideration when reviewing these totals. Limited data is available for many tax expenditures, and TRD has assigned a Reliability Factor (RF) in the TERs to notify the reader of the reliability of an estimate. An RF of 1 is the most reliable and an RF of 4 is the least reliable.

If fewer than three taxpayers claim a tax expenditure, TRD must redact the actual data that was reported to avoid violating the confidentiality provisions in federal and state law. Any amounts attributed to redacted tax expenditures in the TER have not been included in this report as those amounts likely do not reflect the actual cost of those tax expenditures.
