SUMMARY

Synopsis of Bill

House Bill 265 amends the Health Maintenance Law of the New Mexico Insurance Code, NMSA 1978, §59A-46-36. HB 265 prohibits Health Maintenance Organizations (HMO) from discriminating against Doctors of Oriental Medicine (acupuncturists) relative to other providers regarding reimbursement levels and services provided within the scope of their practice.

Significant Issues

DOH states that HB 265 requires reimbursement parity on the basis of the title, Doctor of Oriental Medicine without regard to the nature, duration or extent of training or experience. Opponents of HB 265 claim that most HMOs already cover acupuncture treatment and that it is not appropriate for the state to limit the contractual negotiations between a health plan and a provider.

Proponents of HB 265 argue that New Mexico patients should be able to take full advantage of alternative and complimentary treatment options.

FISCAL IMPLICATIONS

There is no direct fiscal implication, but opponents from the insurance industry believe that the requirements of HB 265 will cause premiums to rise since acupuncturist fees will increase. This will impact the state's health plans for the state employees, the public school employees and the retirees. Currently acupuncture is covered by these plans, but there is a $1500 cap that will be removed by the non-discrimination provisions of HB 265.

ADMINISTRATIVE IMPLICATIONS

HB 265 will require the Form Filing Unit of the Life & Health Bureau of the PRC to review and process amended filings by insurers requiring acupuncture coverage. The Form Filing Unit will also have to ensure that the industry is aware of this new mandated benefit and ensure compliance with the provisions of HB 265.

The Risk Management Division of the General Services Department, the Public School Insurance Authority and the RHCA will have to amend their existing health plans, but this will not require any additional resources.
