SIGNIFICANT ISSUES

PED notes:

This legislation will also support and encourage new music/performing arts talent from the multi-cultural communities in New Mexico. The arts make unique contributions to education, culture and society. New Mexico students, teachers, parents and community members would benefit from a multi-cultural education program that would support recognition and celebration of the diversity of learning opportunities through movement, dance and culture in New Mexico.

Music, movement, choreography, storytelling, valuing one's own and others' cultures can be enhanced through the Performing Arts/Music. Learning through the arts for students creates interest, discipline, focus and promotes learning and skill development.

The NM Content Standards for the Arts make a foundation for this learning along with other Content Standards through:

- Demonstration of an understanding of the dynamics of the creative process.
- Observation, discussion, analysis and making critical judgments about artistic works.
- Increased awareness of diverse peoples through the dance and movement/performing arts.
- Connections and parallels among the Arts, Health and Physical Education disciplines as well as Science, Math, Language Arts, and Social Studies, Modern, Classical and Native Languages and Career Technology.
- Contributions to the local community by sharing learning in movement, and dance.

As the world moves from a logical, linear Information Age into an economy and society built on the inventive capabilities of a Conceptual Age, creative design, sympathy, empathy and meaning* will emerge to be as valued as logical thinking and linear skills are now. (Pink, 2005).

Educational outreach programs based upon learning through the arts and culture promote:

- Creative, engaged, skilled and confident students for New Mexico
- Family and community involvement
- Cultural and traditional celebrations, appreciation and connections
- Celebration and development of artistic skills and knowledge
- Support to New Mexico's elementary arts education programs
- Contribution to closing the achievement gap for students
- Improved school performance, cultural preservation and rejuvenation and job training.
