Legislative Finance Committee Seeks Financial/Regulatory Economist

The New Mexico Legislative Finance Committee (LFC) seeks an applicant for the position of Financial Economist. The LFC, located in Santa Fe, is a bipartisan committee of the New Mexico Legislature responsible for making budget recommendations for the funding of state government. Included in that role is the need to inform the legislative body on how state money is being invested, how the state agencies and instrumentalities borrow money and the impacts of regulations and rule making by state agencies. The Financial Economist works closely with the Chief Economist on issues related to investments, debt financing and regulatory issues. An ideal candidate for this position would have five or more years of relevant professional experience in financial or regulatory areas, a graduate degree in Economics or Finance and must possess superior writing, research, data analysis and communication skills. To apply, fax or email a cover letter and resume by July 16, 2010 to:

Thomas Clifford, Chief Economist
